

House Representation Most Hotly-contested County Issue; Long Ballot Set for Primary

Anything can happen and probably will in Marion county nominations for the four seats in the state house of representatives at the primary vote Friday.

The 12-man race for republican favor and the five-way campaign for democratic votes in this race have all but submerged many of the other prime contests on the record-long ballot. But not quite.

The campaign for sheriff has drawn a major interest. The incumbent, Denver Young, faces republican opposition from I. N. (Ike) Bacon and E. W. Burris. And on the democratic side of the ticket, the former sheriff, Andy Burk, is opposed by Robert Fallon for the final in November.

Two Seek D. A. Post
District Attorney Miller Hayden is opposed for the republican nomination by E. O. Stadler, Jr. There are no democratic candidates for district attorney, nor for other county-wide offices.

On the republican ticket, there is a three-way race for county commissioner. The incumbent, Roy J. Rice, is opposed by Roy S. Melson and Alfred J. Zielinski.

For county treasurer, incumbent Sam Butler is opposed by the GOP nod by Gene Malecki. For county coroner, Lester W. Howell and Ben J. Ramseyer, both republicans, seek to succeed Dr. L. E. Barrick.

Grant Murphy is unopposed for another term as judge. Also unopposed in either party is County Clerk Harlan Judd, County Assessor R. (Tae) Shelton and County Surveyor A. D. Graham. All are republicans.

Incumbents Opposed
All four republican incumbents are seeking re-election to the house of representatives—W. W. Chadwick, Frank Doerflinger, Paul Hendricks and Douglas Yeater. Two former legislators are among their opponents—H. R. (Farmer) Jones and John Steelhammer.

The other six seeking for the republican nomination are E. S. Benjamin, AFL teamster canopy union official and president of the Oregon State Cannery council; David Hoss, former radio and publicity man and now with the Oregon State Mercantile association; Roy Hickey, retired Salem contractor; Ray Glatt of Woodburn, long active in national union affairs; W. J. Lufke, Salem businessman; and Richard H. Spencer, Willamette law school student and owner of a drug store.

Dividing Seats
Differing from the situation two years ago when no democratic candidates for the house were on the ballot, five aspirants on this ticket will be up for nomination Friday.

They are Arthur L. Davis, Willamette student; Charles W. Fantz, in the logging business near Silverton; Raymond R. Knight, truck contractor; Josephine Albert, building widely-known in state and local music circles; and Antoine M. Mazza, McKee district farmer.

Also entering this area's politics is the republican contest for Salem district constable (with jurisdiction over 58 of the county's 92 precincts). The incumbent, Earl Adams, is opposed for nomination by James Garvin, former deputy sheriff, and Ervin Ward, formerly with the Salem city police and now driver for Oregon Motor Stages. Sole democratic candidate is Fred T. Hall, former peace officer in Pennsylvania.

One J. P. Contest
Only justice of the peace contest in the primaries is in the Silverton district, with Alf Nelson, incumbent, opposed for the republican nomination by F. E. Sylvester.

No Marion county non-partisan ballot was printed for the May primaries because incumbents seeking re-election have no opposition—E. M. Page and George Duncan, circuit judges; Joe Felton, district judge; and Agnes Booth, county school superintendent.

Crosby to Manage Lebanon Chamber
LEBANON, May 15—John Crosby, who has been assistant manager of Klamath Falls Chamber of Commerce, has been selected as first paid, full-time secretary-manager of Lebanon's revamped chamber, President Keith Rhodes announced this week.

Crosby was the unanimous choice from several applicants. He will assume his new duties the end of this week. Unmarried, he is a war veteran and a graduate of the University of Chicago.

410 Acres in Tract
The 410-acre tract lies south of the present Hoyt street southern city boundary, between Raynor street (on the west) and the end of 16th street south of Oxford (on the east). The area is generally bounded as follows: South from Raynor to Hoyt along the ridge line in that area and continuing south a full mile from McGilchrist street along the west line of Morningside addition and Morningside outlots to the north boundary of Oak Hill tracts; then east three-fourths mile to the Fairview home state property line, north along Fairview home road and the east line of Tri-Mountain View subdivision to the Southern Pacific right-of-way, continuing north along the railroad to city limits.

Only part east of the railroad tracks is a small area of the Walling property on which the new Walling warehouse is located.

Annexing of that territory requires favorable vote of the city and also of voters residing in the affected area. The annexation vote will be at a special polling place at 1450 E. Hoyt st.

City Recorder Alfred Mundt estimates 350 persons in the proposed annexation area are eligible to vote.

There are elections for district attorney in 24 of the 36 counties, but contests have developed in only five—Marion, Clackamas, Gilliam, Tillamook and Wasco.

Many Changes Assured for Senate, House

Many legislative contests will be decided at Friday's vote, and several campaigns for circuit judge and district attorney also reach their climax.

Of the 30 state senators, 12 are holdovers whose terms do not expire, including Sens. Allan G. Carson and Douglas McKay of Marion county, Dean Walker of Polk-Benton, Angus Gibson of Lane-Linn, Orval Thompson of Linn, and Eugene Marsh of Yamhill.

Three Senators Die
Nine no longer will serve as senators. Of the nine, three have died since the last session—Lee Patterson of Portland, Merle Chessman of Astoria and Marshall E. Cornett of Klamath Falls. Three are running for higher office—Earl T. Newbury for secretary of state, Lew Wallace for governor and Walter Pearson for state treasurer. Three others didn't file—W. W. Baldere, P. J. Stadelman and George P. Winslow.

The other nine incumbents seek re-election. One has no opposition in either party—Sen. William Walsh of Coos Bay.

38 Seek Re-election
In the house, seven of the 60 incumbents are running for state senator, and 15 others did not file for re-election. The 38 incumbents who seek another term include Marion, Benton, Polk and Yamhill delegations and M. M. Landon of Linn county. None of the three women representatives will return—Rose Poole of Klamath Falls and Anna Ellis of Garibaldi quitting state politics and Marie Wilcox of Grants Pass filing for the senate instead.

John Hall and Earl T. Newbury, senators at the last session, now are governor and secretary of state, respectively, and seek to be returned to those offices.

Judgeship Candidates
Other offices to be filled this year include 14 of the state's 30 circuit judgeships. Candidates for 11 of the 14 are unopposed. One of the three contests is in the Benton-Linn district where Judge Victor Oliver of Albany is opposed by Fred McHenry, Corvallis.

Six Contests Set for Polk County Ballot

DALLAS, Ore., May 15—(Special)—Six contests for nomination in the May primaries in regard to Polk county officers are enlivening the final week in this area prior to the formal vote.

Most-sought office is that of county commissioner, now held by H. H. Brant who did not file for another term. Four persons are seeking the republican nomination—R. VanDenBosch, C. L. Burbank, L. C. Kinsey and Pearl Hughes—and one is on the democratic ticket—James R. Mancham.

Four incumbents face position for re-nomination: State Rep. Lyle Thomas is opposed by Mrs. Joe Rogers, Sr., for the house of representatives, and the republican ticket.

Most-sought office is that of county commissioner, now held by H. H. Brant who did not file for another term, and the winner will face James Davidson, democrat, in the general election.

County Judge Herman VanWell is opposed for the democratic nomination for another term by M. Jack Power. Only republican in the race is C. F. (Jack) Hayes.

Josiah Williams, school superintendent for more than 20 years, is opposed for that office, on the non-partisan ticket, by Dorothea Johnston.

District Attorney R. S. Kreson is unopposed for another term, as are Elmer Cook and Alvin Hullett, West Salem and Grande Ronde justices of the peace, respectively.

R. V. Carlson and Mrs. C. P. (Nettie) Helgeson seek the republican nomination for assessor to succeed Ed Dunn, democrat, veteran assessor who withdrew his candidacy because of ill health.

There are no primary election contests for clerk and treasurer.

Following of State Dictate Is Promised

PORTLAND — Lamar Toozz, Portland, candidate for delegate to the republican national convention from the state at large, has declared he would support at the convention the presidential candidate chosen by the vote of Oregon republicans at the primary election. He has announced the following platform:

"I believe in adequate federal appropriations for the up-building of Oregon and the west by power development, reclamation, irrigation and conservation of natural resources. The federal government should reimburse the state for its tax loss caused by the federal ownership of public lands. I firmly believe in private enterprise with proper safeguards, however, against monopoly and exploitation; also, full legal protection of labor's hard-won right to bargain collectively, and against present bureaucratic control and for a return to constitutional government, an essential guarantee of human freedoms."

Mr. Toozz, a member of the law firm of Cake, Jauregui & Toozz, is a native of Woodburn. Before moving to Portland in 1925 he had also resided in Falls City, Salem, Eugene and McMinnville. An overseas veteran of both world wars, he is a graduate of University of Oregon and Harvard law school. He is chairman of the state board of bar examiners and one of the commissioners of Portland housing authority. He commands the 104th Infantry (Timberwolf) division, a reserve army unit.
