Brief Statement

Simple Salad Proves About All Cook Needs to Make for Popularity

By Maxine Buren
Statesman Woman's Editor

We can write all that a hostess needs to know about salad in one short paragraph.

For extra fine company, or just plain company, or for the family, toss up a mixture of lettuce, radishes, celery, green onion, cucumber and maybe some tomatoes, moisten lightly with a good French dressing and serve.

The addition of some slightly sour or bitter green will add to the interest. Water cress, dandelion greens, spinach, endive or sorrel give the needed oomph to the salad.

That's all you need to know, your culinary reputation is made. But just to make the story long enough to bother with, here's a French dressing recipe well worth while.

EMMA'S FRENCH DRESSING
1 cup oil
1/2 cup vinegar
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup catsup
1 teaspoon or more salt
1/2 teaspoon celery salt
Clove of garlic
Mix together and shake before using.
