JEFFERSON, June 12—Strawberry picking has started in this community with prospects for a good crop, but pickers are scarce. New berry growers this year include Jake Gilmour, who has 20 acres on his land bought from the David H. Looney estate north of Jefferson and farmed by Forrest Miller.

Reeves Talbot Grower
Paul McKee has an acre of river bottom land back of his Jefferson residence in market strawberries bearing the first time this spring.

Hal Reeves on the Talbot road is another new berry grower. He has five acres of strawberries and one acre of thornless loganberries. His father, Frank Reeves of Salem is associated with him in the project.

Dale Eisenmann in the Greens Bridge neighborhood is putting in a bean yard this year for the first time. George McCoy of Marion, who recently bought the Cooper estate farm on Greens Bridge road, has cleared the land and is also putting in a bean yard and sweet corn for the cannery. He has made a big improvement on the farm.

eral acres of the Parrish land just north of town planted to mint for the first time this year.

Bill Hart and Oliver Stephenson are building a four-tub mint still on Greens Bridge road, to be completed in time for distilling this fall.

Mike Helms, farmer southeast of here, has taken out his bean yard and has planted it to mint.
