

Dan Jarman Leaves Estate to Willamette, Christian Science Church, Alberta Kerr Home

Willamette university, the First Church of Christ Scientist in Salem and the Alberta Kerr home for girls in Portland will share in the extensive estate of the late Dan B. Jarman, long-time resident of this city, it was disclosed Thursday.

The estate is held in trust for surviving heirs, which are the widow and children, who will share the income. The principal will accrue at their deaths to the three institutions named in the will.

Willamette is to receive one-half, the church and the Kerr home each one-fourth.

Mr. Jarman was one of the largest stockholders in the nation-wide J. C. Penney company, and owned considerable business and residential property in Salem, Portland, Vancouver, Wash., and other Washington cities. He died at Santa Monica, Calif., last May 4.

Mr. Jarman was born June 5, 1873, at Lampeter, South Wales, England, the son of Thomas Jacks and Ann Jarman, came to the United States when in his early teens, residing in Chicago with a brother the first 12 years of his residence in this country. One of his first jobs was in claims department of a Chicago railroad, as a tracer of lost baggage, and he retained a life-long interest in rail-roading.

He came to Eugene, Ore., to work there for P. Frank & Sons, then established his own general merchandise store at Weston, Ore., and later at Athena, Ore., where he met and married Edith M. Post on July 14, 1900.

In 1914, Mr. Jarman joined the staff of the J. C. Penney store at Dallas, Ore., and two years later opened the first Penney store in Salem. He remained as manager of the Salem Penney store for nine years, at the same time training executives of the Penney company and opening a new store for the firm in several parts of the nation. He retired in 1928, devoting considerable of his time since then to philanthropy.

For the last 20 years the Jarman's have spent a portion of each winter in southern California, but have always let it be known they considered Salem as their home.

Mr. Jarman, who financed the education of several youths and aided considerably in the developing of many currently large industries in Salem, was the largest contributor to the Salem Long-range Planning commission, served on the board of directors, which was instrumental in building the Salem YMCA, and was active in the Kiwanis and Knife and Fork clubs of Salem.

The survivors, in addition to the widow, include three daughters—Martha Findley of Rickreall, Juanita Reynolds of Everett, Wash., and Gwendolyn J. Burgoyne of Santa Barbara, Calif. Another daughter, Eloise Ann Jarman, is deceased. Also surviving are five grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Jarman is maintaining the family home at 706 N. Winter st., in Salem, as well as the Jarman's beach home at Neskewin, and says that "Oregon is my home just as it was my husband's."

Bovs' School Will Receive New Library

Months of work spent in gathering a book library for state boys' training school at Woodburn will culminate Wednesday in formal presentation of the library by American Legion post 149, the Salem all-woman unit.

The books have been purchased with funds raised in a drive by the post's child welfare committee, headed by Mrs. Nell Knittel. A substantial portion of the funds were contributed by the Salem Trades and Labor council.

Presentation of the library, which now contains over 500 books, will be made at a luncheon at the school Wednesday noon. Mildred Christensen, commander of post 149, and other post members, will be present.

Mrs. Knittel said these books are needed, but that the post prefers no donations because only books named on a special list may be placed in the training school.

June 30 Final Day for Vets To Ask Cars

Marion and Polk county disabled veterans who are eligible for motor vehicles paid for by the government have only until June 30 to apply for them, James Callaway, commander of the Salem chapter, Disabled American Veterans, said Thursday.

Application should be made with the local veterans administration offices as soon as possible to assure ample processing, Callaway advised.

In Oregon, 169 ex-GIs who have a leg as a result of wartime service have received cars, trucks or tractors, each costing up to $1,600. It is reported that 18 others have been approved for free vehicles. These and all veterans approved by June 30 will have two years in which to select their vehicle under the present "auto for amputees" program.

Survey Shows Probability of Record Vacation Travel for '48 Summer; Resorts Beckon

By Conrad Prange
Staff Writer, The Statesman

Salem and Oregon are all set to experience a record vacation travel season—both into and out of the state—a survey showed Thursday.

About half the vacationists from Oregon and the Salem area will head for resort spots outside the state this summer while the other half will relax in Oregon's own beautiful mountains, lakes, streams and beaches, the state travel bureau estimated.

Even foreign travel, especially to Pacific area, Alaska and western Europe, England and Scandinavia is being patronized by a great number of Salem residents this year, the Salem Travel agency reported.

Out-of-state residents apparently have no qualms about Oregon floods, as scant mention of high waters has been made so far in the 120,000 letters received by the state travel bureau since last October. Last year only 116,000 were received from October 1946 to October 1947.

As usual, August is expected to be the peak month for both intra-state tourist travel and movement of out-of-state tourists coming to Oregon. The bureau, however, is endeavoring to "spread out" the vacation season, by impressing Oregonians and residents of other states with the advantages of travel in June, July and September.

Steamship accommodations to Europe are sold out to September, said Karl B. Kugel, manager of Salem Travel agency, 735 N. Capitol st. Air reservations, however, can be arranged for in about 35 days.

"Normal Number" Noted
The expected large amount of takers on the all-expense-paid tourist trips to foreign lands this summer has dwindled to "a normal number" of travelers going to Europe in search of relatives, visitors and business men.

A bottleneck in ship production permits only one steamer to ply the popular Hawaiian trade (where five sailed before the war) so ship accommodations in that direction remain closed until October. Air travel to the islands, however, is available on short notice.

has taken all reservations to that spot until August, Kugel reported. No pre-war west coast-wise passenger ships are back in circulation yet and no passenger service through the Panama canal to New York has been restored, he said. Both of these voyages were "extremely popular" prior to the war.

West Accessible
Although eastern Europe "behind the curtain" remains practically closed to travelers, western Europe is easily accessible, the travel man noted. Conditions there are ideal, he said, for travel now. All arrangements for foreign travel can be made right here in Salem.

An indication of foreign travel was found in the office of Marion County Clerk Harlan Judd, who reported that 24 passports to foreign lands have been issued by his office so far this year. Many of them are to South America, but the bulk will carry their bearers to England, Norway and France.
