$4,629,881 in City Building Permits for First Six Months Sends 1948 on Way to Record

June building permits in Salem -- $2,365,340 worth -- put the city well on the route to another record breaking construction year. Building authorized by city inspectors for the first six months of 1948 totaled $4,629,881. Construction for the first half of 1947 was $3,673,967.

Of June's record total, $2,324,300 was for new construction and $41,040 for alterations and repairs. Permits revealed by the city building inspection office show construction only within the city limits and do not reflect rapid building growth in suburban areas.

Major projects started since the first of the year include: two churches, three clinics, the Izaak Walton league building, Coca Cola bottling works, Terminal Ice and Cold Storage, dormitory at the Oregon school for the deaf, Berg Market and the Disabled American Veterans hall.

Totals for construction by months since January 1 were: January, $400,975; February, $273,805; March, $481,800; April, $734,949; and May, $373,012.
