

Body of Youth Found Floating In Willamette

A body tentatively identified as that of Roy Albert Staats, 14-year-old Newberg boy who was believed drowned last October 23, was taken from the Willamette river near St. Paul Tuesday.

Although the Staats family could not make identification of the body, officials who investigated discovery of the body thought it probably is Staats' because of the length of time the body apparently had been in water, the fact it was a young man's body and similarity of a remaining bit of cloth to clothing the boy had been wearing.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Staats, Newberg star route, disappeared October 23 when a boat carrying him and two companions capsized in the river about one-half mile of the spot where the body was discovered by government engineers working on the river yesterday. The body was located near M. B. Lucas farm property about two miles downstream from Wheatland ferry.

Staats' companions of the duck hunting accident last fall were Walter D. Wright, 31, and Delbert Webber, 19, both of Newberg, who gained shore after the boat overturned.

The Staats family also includes sons Wayne, 19, and Bill, 11, and a daughter, Rene, 10.

The body was interred at Friends cemetery Tuesday evening by the Hodson funeral home of Newberg. Yamhill County Coroner C. A. Hodson assisted Marion County Coroner L. E. Barrick in the investigation.

Jimmy Rapped For Political 'Impertinence'

OAKLAND, Calif., July 6-(AP)—A democratic party pillar in northern California undertook today to unseat James Roosevelt as a delegate to the democratic national convention.

A demand that Roosevelt resign was made by Patrick W. McDonough, Oakland steel manufacturer, convention delegate and member of the state democratic central committee.

McDonough told Roosevelt in a telegram that the son of the late president had "dishonored" the California delegation by maneuvering to skip President Truman at the Philadelphia nominating convention next week.

Roosevelt was not immediately available in Los Angeles for comment.

BOSTON, July 6-(AP)—Mayor James M. Curley, democratic national committeeman, termed as "gross impertinence" a reported plan by James Roosevelt to urge President Truman to give up his fight for nomination.

The 72-year-old mayor said: "I think it is gross impertinence and unquestionably due to his extreme youth."

Roosevelt, eldest son of the late president, is 42.

Region one, northern Idaho and western Montana, $1,300,000.

Region four, central and southern Idaho, $350,000.

The money will be used to repair roads and trails, bridges, communication lines and recreational grounds in 10 national forests in the recent flood area.

No Comment on Eisenhower

CINCINNATI, Ohio, July 6—President Harry Truman holds a newspaper containing the story of General Eisenhower's refusal to accept democratic urge that he take the party's presidential nomination, and issued a terse "no comment" as he stood on the observation platform of his private car at Cincinnati, O., en route to Washington. He was returning to the capital from Bellair, Mo., where he dedicated a monument. (AP Wirephoto to The Statesman).

Stop-Truman Fight Continues Despite Eisenhower's Stand

A last ditch stop-Truman movement drove grimly ahead last night in the hope that General Dwight D. Eisenhower can be drafted for the democratic presidential nomination despite his refusal to take it.

New attention was thrown on the name of Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas as a possible nominee with the same aim of side-tracking the president's ambitions for election.

In Massachusetts, all delegates to next week's nominating convention were urged to support Douglas. Letters were sent them by a committee headed by former U. S. Rep. Thomas H. Elliot. Elliot said Douglas had not authorized the action.

Douglas' name will be put before the convention, asserted Leon C. Henderson, chairman of Americans for Democratic Action. Henderson said in a statement, however, that ADA still hopes Eisenhower can be persuaded to run.

In Illinois, an unofficial survey among members of the 60-vote delegation indicated Mr. Truman had gained strength after the latest Eisenhower disavowal of political ambitions, while some pro-Eisenhower delegates indicated a leaning to Douglas. Pro-Truman Illinois leaders discounted the Douglas talk then.

O'Mahoney Proposed One stop-Truman leader, William Ritchie, Nebraska state democratic chairman, said he will suggest Senator O'Mahoney of Wyoming for the presidential nomination. O'Mahoney is a candidate for vice presidential nomination and a friend of Mr. Truman.

Although pre-convention caucuses still were scheduled by anti-Truman leaders, the president's backers exultantly viewed the Eisenhower statement as the clincher for Mr. Truman's nomination on the first ballot.

Eisenhower's "No!" was subjected to a close between-the-lines study by those who seek or draft him, looking for loopholes.

Mr. Truman, returning to Washington from Bellair, Mo., had "no comment" on Eisenhower's statement. But aides said the president felt that the only formidable threat to a first ballot Truman nomination had been removed.

He headed back to the White House to help plan the moves to head off any renewed Eisenhower threat at next week's convention. Momentarily slowed, the Eisenhower bandwagon got going ahead in this way:

James Roosevelt, California state chairman and son of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, declared the democrats should nominate Eisenhower as a "national candidate."

He renewed the call for a caucus Saturday at Philadelphia of democratic delegates to settle on a candidate. He got quick "ayes" back from Eisenhower draft leaders.

Roosevelt reasoned that Eisenhower "will not serve as a partisan president but will answer a call to national duty."

U.S. Holiday Deaths at 571; State Toll 11

By the Associated Press The three-day Fourth of July week end brought violent death to at least 571 persons.

The over-all safety showing was the poorest since 1941 and the third worst in 20 years.

A final survey showed these violent deaths occurred from 6 p.m. (local time) Friday and Monday midnight.

Traffic 306, drownings 192, fireworks 4 and miscellaneous causes 69.

The over-all total was exceeded by the record total of 628 in 1941 and 596 in 1939.

The traffic toll was the third highest in 20 years — exceeded only by the 1941 toll of 384 and the 1947 toll of 310.

The 192 drownings was the highest total from this cause in 20 years.

The four fireworks fatalities marked the first deaths from this cause since 1940.

Eleven persons were killed in the long holiday week end in Oregon.

The latest added to the list were Thomas Joseph Harrison, Albany, killed in an automobile crash at Celilo on the Columbia river highway, and Norman Keith Helvey, 18, La Grande, drowned 30 east of Roseburg in the North Umpqua river.

Their deaths brought the toll to five highway fatalities, three drownings, two accidental shootings and one death from fireworks.

The labor plank of the 1948 platform will stir up some arguments in the party's resolutions committee which starts hearings tomorrow.

The CIO, represented by Secretary James Carey, and the AFL, represented by President William Green, will ask the committee later in the week — to go on record for the wiping out of the labor law.

Democrats who want to pledge repeal say:

That President Truman vetoed the Taft-Hartley bill and strongly condemned it a year ago. That it became law only after the republican-dominated congress overrode his veto.

That the law bears the names of two republicans and has become known as a republican measure. A democrat pledge to repeal it would not only please labor leaders but it would fit in with Mr. Truman's strategy of blasting the record of the 80th congress.

On the other hand, many other democrats say there would be political disadvantages in pledging repeal.

The democrats, who are at their strongest in the big cities and among industrial workers, want to capture as large a proportion of the farm, rural and small city vote as possible. Maybe a pledge of repeal would displease some non-labor groups.

COOS BAY, July 6—A hearing to give freight haulers a chance to protest against present highway regulations was scheduled tentatively today for August 20 in Portland. State Rep. Ralph Moore, of Coos Bay, chairman of the interim legislative highway committee, said Gov. John Hall had authorized the hearing. Moore said a number of freight haulers believed present regulations discriminatory.

The turbines, to be delivered in about five years, are of 111,300 horsepower capacity each. The next four of the 14 to go into the dam will be ordered in 1952. The S. Morgan Smith company, of York, Pa., won today's contract.

OREGON CITY, July 6—Two fires at the Hawley Pulp and Paper company yesterday slightly damaged a newsprint machine.

PORTLAND, Ore., July 6—Loss of millions of salmon from state and federal fish hatcheries in the Columbia river flood area is expected to seriously curtail commercial river catches in three to five years. Leo Laythe, chief of the U. S. fish and wildlife service office here, reported nine million fingerling salmon were swept out of brood pools at the Bonneville, Ore., hatchery alone.

E. Ullman, 1730 N. Capitol st., was severely burned on the arms and legs. She is in Salem General hospital. The boys and several customers escaped with slight burns. (Statesman photo).

Vitamin Plant Blast Rocks Seattle Area

SEATTLE, July 6-(AP)—A bomb-like blast that rocked northwest Seattle's Ballard district demolished the Lyle Branchflower Co. vitamin plant just after closing time tonight, killed two men, injured one and left three or more missing.

Coroner John P. Brill, jr. said first estimates that some 35 workmen were in the plant when the explosion came at 5:35 p.m. (PDT) apparently were in error.

Allan Turer, a plant official, said 40 or 50 workers had left the structure at the end of the 5 p.m. shift.

Brill identified one of the dead as John Zengar and the other tentatively — as Roland Stebbin, both employes at the plant. The bodies, found outside the plant gates, were burned beyond recognition.

The blast was heard and felt from four to five miles from the northwest Seattle community. Fire swept over the wreckage in the wake of the explosion.

TYPHOON HITS SHANGHAI SHANGHAI, Wednesday, July 7-(AP)—This coastal metropolis escaped the full blast of a typhoon early today, but high winds on the fringe of the storm caused considerable damage.
