

Pershing Visits 1918 War Front

Fire Laws Summarized For Farmers

Now that the danger season for forest fires is approaching, a digest of the Oregon forest fire laws that apply particularly to farmers and woodlot owners has been prepared by Charles R. Ross, OSC extension forester.

In summarizing seven of the more significant laws, Ross has attempted to give the highlights as they apply to farmers and rural residents. The summary follows:

The permit law: Persons who wish to burn forest land, grass, grain stubble or stumps must secure written permission from a fire warden during the closed season which runs normally from May 15 to December 31.

Cigarette and match law: During the closed season, it is unlawful for anyone to throw away lighted tobacco, matches or other material on any forest land, private road, public highway or railroad right of way.

Campfire law: Persons building campfires on land not their own are required to clear the ground immediately around the fire. Campfires must not be left unattended.

Willful setting of fire: Persons convicted of setting incendiary fires are liable to prison sentences.

Operator's permit law: Anyone desiring to use fire or to use power driven machinery in connection with logging on or within one-eighth mile of forest land is required to get a permit annually from the state forester.

Slash burning law: Individuals or companies that harvest forest products are required to burn slash each year if it is a fire hazard. The burning is supervised by fire wardens. Land owners share in responsibility for reducing slash hazards on their lands.

Closure law: The governor's proclamation may totally or partially close such forest areas to all forms of use where fire danger is considered especially dangerous.

Democrats Breakfast After Revolt

PHILADELPHIA, July 15 — Gov. Fielding Wright (right of Mississippi, who has sounded the call for a meeting of southern democrats in Birmingham, Ala., has a late breakfast with three fellow Mississippians. Ranch Ramblings

When grasslands are plowed once again the soil is found full of humus. This is well illustrated on the Chris Doppke farm a couple of miles out on the Salem side of Molalla. Last fall Chris plowed an old stand of chervings fescue, somewhat mixed with orchard grass. Resulting stands of oats on the one portion and Dixie crimson clover on the other are the best Chris says, that he ever saw on this farm.

Elmer Dietz and family have bought a farm near Molalla and are raising Jerseys. Just how Clackamas county gets all of those new Jersey breeders is a wonder to some of her neighboring counties. However, there may be discussion (informal, of course) on this at the annual picnic of the Oregon Jersey Cattle club to be held in the Dallas city park on July 25. Marion county breeders cancelled their July meeting in order to all get out to the state meeting.

Maybe part of Clackamas?

popularity in the dairy world is caused by the new barns going up over that way. Newest of the new barns is that of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Couch.

Marion county is, however, doing something in the Jersey business, too, along with claiming the state president's herd. Bates. The state president's herd, belonging also to his wife Leta, has been classified recently for type under the program of the national club. The 13 animals won an average score of 80.19, with one Very Good, six Good Plus, five Good and one Eair.

Quincy and his sister, Clara (now Mrs. Frank Ferguson of Baytown, Texas), still own a farm, a portion of their grand father Leander Davis' land donation claim, off the Stayton road a short distance southwest of Silverton.

Cleanup Time in Philadelphia

Income Tax Surplus Release Poses Legislative Problem

The state supreme court decision Friday, releasing surplus income tax funds for state expenditures, has created a problem for the next legislature, political observers pointed out.

The 1949 session is virtually sure to be besieged by schools, state departments, counties and cities, demanding some of the money, it was observed.

Among the foremost is the state system of higher education. Gov. John H. Hall recently said at least some of the surplus should be used for colleges. The system wants up to $14,000,000 for its building program.

Others who want a share of the estimated $50,000,000 surplus include the state welfare commission — running on an inadequate budget — and state institutions needing new buildings.

Others, along with the dissenting justices who failed to concur in the majority opinion Friday, have made warnings against a spending spree.

Douglas McKay, republican candidate for governor, said it is "hard-earned tax money that belongs to the taxpayers, collected to meet essential state services and not to provide a spending spree."

Lew Wallace, democratic candidate for governor, also expressed go-east sentiments.

State Treasurer Leslie M. Scott has proposed the legislature could put half the extra cash in reserve for harder times.

Friday's supreme court opinion involved the state income tax law which was passed in 1929.

EUROPEAN MARKET STUDIED
The government is sending a representative, George C. Edler, to Europe within the next few days to make a survey of foreign production prospects and the possibilities of marketing more vegetable and field crop seeds there. Edler is seed statistician for the Bureau of agricultural economics. He has prepared the department of agriculture seed estimates for the past 31 years and made a similar survey of seed supplies and demand after World War I. He is expected to complete his current investigation by late September.
