LONDON, July 28 -(AP)- The mightlest sports carnival in history will open here tomorrow in colorful ceremonies bringing 5,000 athletes from 59 nations together in Olympic rivalry.

Ten minutes of pageantry is all there is of the opening program. The only running will be done by men bearing the symbolic flame on its last lap from the Olympic torch on its way toward London. The torch landed this evening at Dover after passing through seven countries. If the timing is right it will be borne into the stadium at precisely 4:07 p.m. (8:07 a.m., PDT) by a runner whose identity was still hidden tonight. His arrival will climax those minutes of ceremony into which will be packed all the colorful symbolism of the games - preserved through centuries and staged by the world's parade. Just before the torch bearer races in and circles the bright red running track, 7,000 pigeons will be loosed into the air as symbols of peace and a 21-gun salute will be fired.

The ceremonies ended, the athletes will return to their camps to await the opening of competition on Friday morning. America's powerful contingent of men and women stars gathered at Uxbridge tonight to re-hearse their part in the parade and to decide in what order the various teams will march.

American training camps failed to turn up a single injury or iliness of any importance. Uncle Sam's athletes have reached a peak of form and condition after a week's intensive training under a hot sun, and they will have no alibis.

than Tex Salkeld puned in an outdoor scrap in Portland in an outdoor scrap in Portland this summer. "That was to have been for the title," wailed Tex, "And Lesnevich isn't the champ any more." . . . WI Loop Prexy Bob Abel has inherited a tough task. It seems a number of squabbles have reached him from around the league as to just who holds what records in the circuit. The Howe Bureau in Chicago has all marks up to snuff since 1938, when that agency began statistical work. But the league itself was born in 1937. The Howe people have no figures at all on the inaugural season. According to Howe tabulations, the record for number of wins in a season by a pitcher is held jointly by Osborn (Vancouver) and Bob Kinnaman (Spokane), both prewars who notched 22 wins. Inasmuch as the Howe agency has nothing to discount it, 22 victories is the record. But in 1937, Oscar (Red) Miller, the lefty who toiled for the Salem Capitols last season, racked up 25 victories with Yakima. a known fact. Also in '37, Les Webber, now with Oakland, won 16 straight games for Taconia. This isn't being recognized either. So Prexy Abel has some Hawkshawing to do. When he is finished, it would be nice if his office would supply all clubs in the league with a complete compilation of all records, right from the beginning.
