Fuchsia Grows Like Tree

G. F. Candeaux of the Haseldorf apartments is shown above with a three-year-old fuchsia plant that disdained being the ordinary bush type associated with the fuchsia family. Instead, the plant chose to be a tree plant and at present is seven feet tall. Candeaux, a director of the Salem Men's Garden club, admits he did help the fuchsia plant along with special foods and care. (Photo by Don Dill, Statesman staff photographer.)

Pageantry, Athletics, Exhibits To Top Flax Festival Program

MT. ANGEL, Aug. 5 - (Special) - Pageantry, athletics and exhibits are top features on the completed activity schedule for Mt. Angel's annual Flax festival.

Opening with the queen selection ceremonies, Tuesday, August 17, through the festivities of Friday, Saturday and Sunday Mt. Angel will honor its flax industry.

From a quintet of comely princesses judges will select the girl to reign over the festival as flax queen. Rita Drescher, Monitor; Mary Jane Geelan, St. Paul; Marilyn Myers, Salem; Regina Traeger, Mt. Angel, and Betty Twito, Woodburn, are candidates. The 8 p. m. queen selection ceremonies outside Mt. Angel's city hall on August 17 will be followed by a dance at St. Mary's auditorium.

Main activities of the festival will begin with coronation of the queen at the school grounds at 8 p. m. Friday, August 20. The coronation ball honoring flax royalty follows at St. Mary's auditorium. Tours of Plants Set

Activities will begin early Saturday, August 21, with tours of flax and hop plants at 10 a. m. Flax and flax product exhibits will be open at the city hall during the day.

The grand parade highlights entertainment for the afternoon. Floats and bands will proceed down Main street beginning at 2 p. m. Dorothy McCullough Lee, mayor - elect of Portland, will speak, probably just prior to the parade. A schedule of street sports follows the parade at 4 p. m. Noon and evening meals will be served by the Catholic Daughters at St. Mary's school dining room. Vaudeville in Evening

An all - star variety vaudeville tops the evening activities. The show begins at 8 p. m. at the school ground. Prizes are to be awarded during the show. The day's schedule will conclude with a street dance after the vaudeville.

On Sunday, August 22, the youngest generation will add its fervor to festivities in a kiddie parade on Main street at 2 p. m. and with kiddie activities following at the school ground.

At Ebner field ball park, starting at 3 p. m., baseball nines from Silverton and Mt. Angel will cross bats.
