The administration awarded a $30,250 contract to Central Helicopters, Inc., Seattle, to fly over the entire Bonneville-Grand Coulee grid each month. "From the helicopter we can inspect insulators and crossarms from the top, where most damage occurs," said Leland F. Murray, Bonneville maintenance superintendent. He said the plane enabled two men to accomplish the work of 36 ground crewmen.

Samarine Samarin Some of the Time

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14-(AP)—As is the case with a good many Russian names, the name of one of the school teachers figuring in the Russo-American argument has been spelled at least two ways. In the record of the house committee on un-American activities, it is Michael Ivanovitch Samarin. It's that way, too, on his visa. But he himself spells it Samarin, at least sometimes.

Trip to Hood River Music Festival Declared Highlight; Music Good

By Maxine Buren
Statesman Woman's Editor

It seems that everyone who attended the Hood River Music festival last weekend was just about as enthusiastic as I. The music was good, the scenery beautiful and best of all, the participants seemed to be having such a wonderful time. It is an achievement in itself for a town which the Oregon Blue Book lists as having a population of less than 4,000 (though I suspect the figure is much too small for the present population) to attract more than an equal number to a single music event.

For five years the people of Hood River, under the leadership of Boris Sirpo, have dreamed of a festival. This year they had four days of music. For the first year it should be considered a huge success. All Music

The music festival, unlike other "festivals" of the country, had no contests, parades or carnival. There was no selection of a queen and no commercialism. Not even any balloons, but lots of coffee during intermission.

Though several outside artists were brought in to increase interest and provide a bit of sophistication, most of the work was done by townspeople.

Hood River is a city built along the great Columbia, extending up the steep tree-covered hills on the south bank. The festival was held in the athletic field above the town. We looked out over the field, toward the green home-made stage. Across the river to the north we saw a valley flanked by green-blue hills leading into the great white mountain, Mt. Adams, which centered the picture. To the left and right were rows of poplars, rustling in the breeze. The clouds put on their own show. Black on Thursday night, they swept toward the city several times, only to rush off toward the north, spilling their rain on other and less anxious heads. Saturday they were light and soft. Sunday they billowed up over Mt. Adams to form a perfect picture of western scenery.

Hard working musicians practiced through the days during the festival, to ready themselves for the evening performances. Sunday we listened for three hours in the blazing sun, while musicians and singers went through their routine diligently, but with apparent fatigue, during the latter portion of the practice.

One of the most amazing and pleasing things about the festival was the obvious joy of spirit of the participants and helpers. Everyone seemed to be getting the greatest kick out of the festival.

Peter Rowell of Salem Wins National Group's Scholarship

Award to Peter Paul Rowell of Salem of one of the two Thomas Arkie Clark scholarships by Phi Eta Sigma, national freshman honor society, was announced Saturday by Dr. G. Herbert Smith, vice president of the society.

The group ordinarily makes one such award, but two were given this year, the other going to Robert Dalton of Baton Rouge, La. He is a navy veteran who is doing graduate study at Massachusetts Institute of Technology following graduation from Louisiana State university.

Rowell, who graduated in June at University of Idaho, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul T. Rowell, 985 Larmer ave. He majored in chemical engineering and was president of Phi Eta Sigma, and a member of Sigma Tau honorary and American Chemical society, vice president of his junior class and a member of the Idaho chapter, American Institute of Chemical Engineers.

Now Rowell has been admitted to the medical school of Washington university, St. Louis, to study toward a doctor's degree in medicine and to do work in cancer research.

The $300 graduate awards, to members of the society, are made by a scholarship committee which includes Dr. Smith, chairman, Dean Emeritus Scott H. Goodnight of University of Wisconsin, Prof. Francis J. Tschan of Pennsylvania State college and Dr. L. B. Luckey of Louisiana State university.

DICOUMARIN

Wondering why it was that farm animals died of hemorrhage after eating spoiled sweet clover led Prof. Link, of the University of Wisconsin, to begin experiments which produced Dicoumarin, a drug that prevents harmful clotting of blood within the blood vessels. Thus the creative curiosity of a scientist gave another life-saving substance to the human race.

"If bankers won't take the lead in the fight against inflation, who will?" he asked. "Labor leaders are not interested in anything but higher wages. Many corporations, but not all, are profiteering at the expense of the nation, guided more by greed than by good business."
