College Bound...

First college days are ahead for many of the June graduates. Prospective coeds have been busy attending rush parties, shopping for their first college wardrobe, which is always a thrill, deciding what to take and what not to pack. In just a week or two they will be one of hundreds on college campuses looking like green freshmen for buildings, classrooms, worrying about entrance examinations and whether or not there will be a familiar face in their classes. After the whirl of rush week, comes the first football game, house and student body dances, campus activities and in between classes a coke or soda with that special friend from home or a new acquaintance.

Pictured above are a few of the Salem girls who will enter college for the first time this fall. Upper left are Irene McLeod and Crystal Huntington looking over a few textbooks before leaving for the University of Oregon next week.

A threesome who will register at Oregon State college (upper right picture) are Nancy Snyder, Jean Pickens and Janet Lindley, who went over to Corvallis one day to look over the campus.

Stanford bound are Ruth Holtzman and Sarah Jane Backstrand (lower left photo), who discuss their college plans while sipping sodas. The coeds leave in mid-September for Palo Alto, Calif., to register for their freshman year at Leland Stanford university.
