But, alas, Red's among those absent this year How many times have "bright" young gents arrived at a quiniela tie-up after 20 minutes of strenuous deliberation and then changed their minds in the space of a moment only because some wordly - appearing guy right ahead of 'em in the line muttered, like he was about to release the secret of the atom "Gimme one and five"

Bill Beard had a chance for first-line duty with Portland's Beavers after No. 1 Catcher Charley Silvera was injured. Now suppose that the Yanks should recall Silvera to aid 'em in their red-hot-fight for the American league pennant. Consider just how greatly the hopes of Manager Jim Turner and the Bevos would rest on the sturdy shoulders of Billy. 'Course, in the event Silvera left suddenly the Portlands might get back Del Ballinger from Kansas City to help secure a first division berth in the PCL chase - but, facts being facts, neither Ballinger nor Beard is a Silvera. Charley has been the pepperish leader - the inspiration gent of the Beaver's latesummer drive. His departure would once again illustrate that tie - ups with major loops can be very nice, but sometimes also very sour. But then Charley isn't gone yet . . Pennant in Balance; Pirates Top Cards

By the Associated Press The Boston Red Sox and the sizzling New York Yankees open a vital three-game series tonight that may go a long way toward deciding the American league pennant. With the Sockers a scant game and a half ahead of the second place New Yorkers, Boston fans are talking little else but these games. Single day tilts are slated for Thursday and Friday.

With a sellout assured—upwards of 34,000 fans can be packed into Fenway park-tickets for tonight's first clash are being offered by scalpers for as high as $50 a pair, giving the impression of a World's Series.

The two teams have set a torrid pace in recent weeks. The Boston club has won 22 of its last 26, seven in a row.
