Wood Molasses Proves Good Diet to Fatten Hogs, Poultry

By Rennie Taylor

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 16—(AP)—Feed made from sawdust is a satisfactory substitute for some of the wheat and corn in the diet of pigs and chickens, the American Chemical society was told this week. Pork chops from pigs fattened on a diet containing wood molasses taste just as good as those from grain-fed swine, said Dr. W. C. Weir and Dr. W. K. Osterhout, of the Oregon agricultural experiment station.

Baby chicks thrive on a mixture which includes up to 20 percent of wood molasses, Dr. James McGinnis and Dr. J. S. Carver of Washington State college reported. Wood molasses is a black, bitter-tasting stuff made from saw-mill waste at a cost of about five cents a gallon. It contains about 50 percent sugar, which serves as an energy food. It was first produced about a year ago at the U. S. forest products laboratory at Madison, Wis.

Because the molasses contains no protein, the experimenters added more than the usual amount of soybean meal, a protein concentrate, to the feed mixture. Young turkeys, which normally are more delicate than baby chicks, did well on the feed, the researchers said.

Pigs fed with a mixture containing 15 percent of wood molasses each gained 1.14 to 1.24 pounds a day, slightly less than when raised on a standard diet in which no wood product was used, but the lower cost of the wood molasses made up for the difference, Weir and Osterhout said.

The cost of putting 100 pounds of weight on a pig ranged from $20.42 to $20.73 when wood molasses was used. Brewer's yeast was added to help make up the protein content of the feed.

Pigs fed on a diet containing 30 percent or more of wood molasses did not do quite so well as those on a 15-percent mixture.

Many Never Suspect Cause of Backaches

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Taft Says Truman Backing Defiance Taft-Hartley Law

CINCINNATI, Sept. 16—(AP)—Senator Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio) said Thursday President Truman "has encouraged the open defiance of the law now engaged in by some of the more radical labor bosses."

He called Mr. Truman's attack on him yesterday "merely an attempt to curry favor with the labor bosses who control the labor publicity to which he is looking for help in the election."

The president released a letter yesterday, addressed to David P. Findling, NLRB associate general counsel, accusing Taft of an "entirely improper" attempt to "put the heat" on the NLRB to act against the International Typographical union, AFL.
