

Silverton Group Plans For Mail Vote

SILVERTON—Due to conflict with other meetings throughout the community, the Silverton Recreation association's annual election meeting Monday was not sufficiently attended to justify holding the election. Those present voted to hold election by mail ballot to be handled by the president, Clifford Alquist.

Discussion of obtaining a director for part-time indicated a greater success in building up a sound recreational program for the community.

Wade Scott reported progress of the tennis courts being erected by the Junior Chamber of Commerce. There is yet over $500 needed to complete payment on these, it was reported. Treasury of the recreational association showed a balance of more than $500.

Approval was expressed over the new public address system at the McGinnis ball field used for the first time Friday night at the Beaverton-Silverton football game. A war surplus amplifier has been put into use by the addition of three speakers in the grandstand which were a donation by Wiesner's Radio Service and two additional speakers for the field purchased jointly by the Student Body Athletic department and the school district.

Installation was made by the Triple S club of the high school aided by George Wisner and Lowell Brown, of the Interurban Telephone company, who also furnished wire and cord.

Pratum Men Planning To Raise New Playshed

PRATUM—Men of the Pratum and Oakridge communities, whose children attend Pratum school, will meet at the school at 8 a. m. Saturday to raise a 25-by-72-foot playshed for which money and materials have been collected for the past three years. The women will serve a covered dish luncheon at noon.

A similar venture was completed earlier this week when 18 men, led by Adam Hensch, Dave Ramsey, Jr., and Fred Cornu, put up a barn for Robert Hansen to replace a building which burned last February.
