Howland, president of Salem College and Academy, will speak and music will be by Chapel Herald quartet of Portland. Morning and evening services will also feature the dedicatory theme.

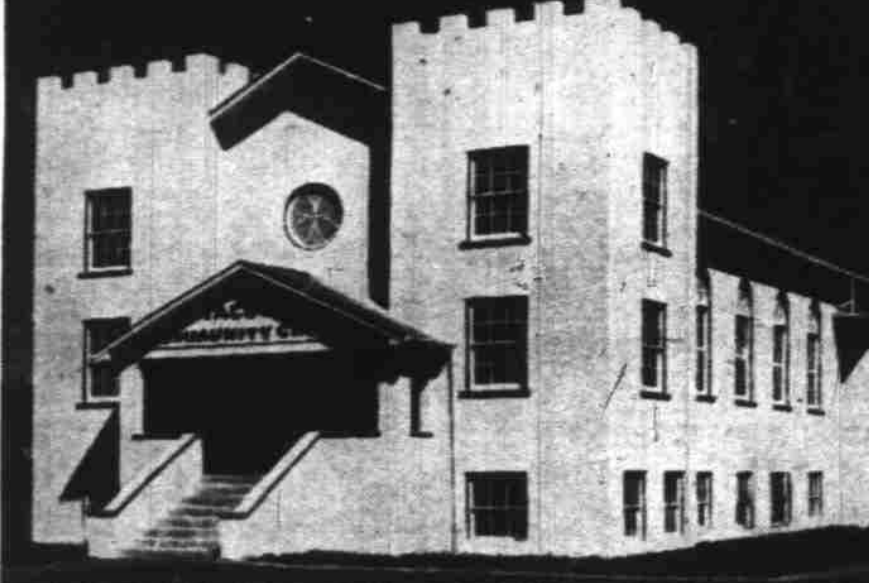

Sunday school will meet in the new building at 10 o'clock, beginning at 10 o'clock. The morning church service will be held at 11 o'clock, with the new 18-voice choir led by the pastor, the Rev. R. Rogers Irwin, who will deliver the sermon. The Rev. Henry Turnidge, who aided in making the new church building a reality, will speak at 8 o'clock. The building, across the road from the Talbot schoolhouse, has a full basement, automatic oil heat, rest rooms, children's nursery equipped with loud speaker, baptistry, pastor's study and class rooms.

The Talbot church, interdenominational, has met for the past 32 years in the schoolhouse. It was organized by the Rev. G. W. Rohrbach, now at Sheffeld, followed by the Rev. D. D. Randall, an active missionary at Medford, also an American Sunday School union missionary, and the Rev. Henry Albers, retired minister at Albany. The late John Turnidge, father of Henry and Dave Turnidge, was also active.

Average Sunday school attendance is 95. Logan Hoven is superintendent of the Sunday school, and Mrs. Louise Edwards is cradle roll superintendent. A young people's group meets each Sunday evening for Bible study, led by Mr. and Mrs. John Finlay and Henry Turnidge.

The present pastor came here 1 1/2 years ago from Sauvie Island, and is aided by Mrs. Ir-

Books and Parent Aid Feature New Presbyterian Lesson Plan

By Winston H. Taylor
Church Editor, The Statesman

Next Sunday school lessons in which the parents will share, with materials which will become a permanent part of each child's library, will be put into use next Sunday by the First Presbyterian church.

The new program has been adopted by about 75 per cent of the denomination's churches and will start simultaneously on October 3. About 400 pupils and 32 teachers will be involved here.

The curriculum was established after 10 years' study according to Dr. Chester W. Hamblin, pastor, because home is where religion must first be taught and because it was felt pupils have not learned sufficient of their beliefs.

Entitled "Christian Faith and Home," a program for church and home, the program will be related to the many levels of thinking, with religious stories told interestingly. The Bible will be the principal text. All of the non-adult classes will study for a year together in one of three fields—life of Christ, the Bible and the church.

To prepare for presentation of the course, teachers have been conferring with the Rev. John Goodenberger, assistant pastor, and J. J. Fitzmons, Sunday school superintendent. This Sunday afternoon they will participate in a 3 to 7 p.m. retreat at the Tinkham Gilbert home. A talk by the Rev. Herman F. Allen of Piedmont Presbyterian church in Portland will be followed by planning sessions for the departments.

Next Sunday parents are asked to come to Sunday school with their children to hear an explanation of the program and their role in it.

A quarterly magazine, varying for each age range, will be issued for teachers and parents, with lesson materials and supplemental reading, including special ways in which the parents can aid in "real learning."

A child starting the program in the nursery department will be the end of high school have 32 paper and cloth-bound books of his own. These will normally remain in the home while in use, except for special assignments. There also will be workbooks in some classes. The printing is in large type, with highly colored pictures. Older groups get one volume a year, the younger ones
