Speaking of Gill, he's apt to pop up with something on the gosh-awful side within the next few seasons. While patrolling the campus one day he spotted, of all things, a 7-foot freshman! The kid was waylaid but quickly, natch. But lo, he has never played any sort of athletics. So for the present the 7-footer is merely "project Gill" around the Corvallis campus . . . On the same side, Gill has welcomed a 6-foot, 7-inch transfer to OSC who has played some basketball in California . . . Another dandy freshman at Corvallis, in the eyes of the mentors who give with 21-carat sparkle every time his name is mentioned, is

They didn't win as was hoped, to bust the Big-9 whammy over the Coast conference, but what other PCC eleven has done as well against the Midwesters as did Oregon at Michigan? The answer is none, and emphatically. Jim Aiken & Co., as now known, out-yarded and out-first downed the highly touted Wolverines, which is something over which other Coast elevens can be deeply concerned. The Michigan game was the one in which the Webfoots were to display whether they had it as big timers or not. They proved they have it, all right.
