County Schools Handle Record Enrollments

A total of 75 schools in Marion county are handling a record enrollment of pupils from 94 districts. Mrs. Agnes Booth, Marion county superintendent of schools, said Monday.

Lack of school space and a shortage of teachers has forced 19 districts to transport students to other district schools. However, Mrs. Booth reported, building programs and consolidations during the past year have helped ease the overload at some schools.

All enrollment figures are not in, but Mrs. Booth estimates that last year's enrollment of 16,000 pupils will be topped by about 15 per cent. Most of the increase, she said, is in the primary grades. Through consolidation measures last year's 113 districts have been reduced to 94.

Early reports of the major trouble spots this year include: Metham—Some of the students are being transported to Stayton. In the primary rooms a double shift is being used—half the pupils come in the morning and half in the afternoon.

Turner—Added two classrooms and three extra teachers. The primary grades are being taught in the Turner Masonic hall.

Aumsville—A local church building is being used for the first grade.

Heavy enrollments also are reported at Marion, where a 25 per cent increase brought an extra teacher; North Santiam, crowded into four rooms; Hazel Green, where an extra teacher is added; Stayton, two extra teachers; Detroit, five additional teachers bringing the total to 11; Sidney with one extra teacher, and Kelzer with 21 teachers compared with 15 last year.

Bean Pickers Still Needed

A call for pickers of a late variety of beans in the Albany area went out Monday from the Salem office of the state employment service.

Work to Begin Soon on Meat Packing Plant

Work will be started this week on a meat packing and curing plant to be owned and operated by James Bremmer at 2493 State st.

The permit for construction of the $7,727 one-story building was issued Monday by the city engineer's office. Ted Patzer, Salem contractor, is in charge of the job. Bremmer said the building would be of pumice blocks, finished with white stucco, and would measure 40 by 32 feet. It will house smoking and curing facilities in addition to a retail and wholesale market to handle both fresh and smoked meats.

Bremmer, operator of a wholesale and retail market at 1399 N. Church st., will transfer the present facilities to the new building when it is completed.

Breyman Boice was authorized to proceed with $3,500 worth of alterations on the Breyman building at Court and South Commercial streets.

Other permits issued Monday went to C. A. Teeter to build a garage at 2340 Claude st., $900; John Cragge to re-roof a house at 2325 Mason st., $250, and I. J. C. Baldwin to re-roof a porch at 445 S. Winter st., $50.

Americans bought more than $21 billion of life insurance during 1947.

Voters Pamphlets For State Mailed

Last of the voters and measures pamphlets for the November election will be mailed by the secretary of state this week. David O'Hara, head of the state elections bureau, reported Monday.

O'Hara said approximately 675,000 pamphlets have been printed with prospects that the registration would exceed 650,000. All county registration figures received up to this time indicate a substantial increase in registrations for this year when compared with those for the general election in 1940 and the primary election two years ago.

This year's pamphlet is a trifle longer than the one printed four years ago, O'Hara said.

FOOTPRINTS by JIM

MY BEST BET is to give you the straight dope on our shop. I know that you know our place down on High Street... Been there for years. But do you know that we not only make shoes to order, and repair shoes but that we sell shoes, readymade? In a way I reckon that's the difference between us and most shoe stores. Fooling with so many kinds of leathers, dyes and polishes is a form of schooling. Shoe - schooling, let's call it. And to make the grade you have to know about shoes. So give us the test. We're pretty certain you'll mark us "A".
