Autumn Change

Hot Breads Made at Home, Replace Summertime Breads in Fall, Winter

By Maxine Buren
Statesman Woman's Editor

Autumn is a time when women think again of hot breads. Rich dark flour, raisins, nuts or fruit go into the various hot breads to make wintertime eating a real adventure.

Now take graham muffins, "gems" as we always called them.

GRAHAM GEMS
1 cup graham flour
1 cup white flour
4 teaspoon salt
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 cup milk
1 egg
2 tablespoons molasses or brown sugar
3 tablespoons fat

Mix dry ingredients, add milk, egg and melted shortening. Bake in greased gem pans about 25 minutes.

Orange juice gives this not-so-old recipe for biscuits its flavor.

ORANGE BISCUITS
2 tablespoons melted butter
4 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon orange juice
1 grated orange rind
Cook until thick, then cool. Make biscuits as usual, using a little extra shortening. Roll out 1/4 inch thick, spread with mixture, cut into 1/2 inch thick slices, sprinkle with sugar and bake.

And finally, there's prune bread, inexpensive, as sweet breads go, and mighty good.

PRUNE BREAD
1 cup prune pulp cut fine
1 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 egg beaten
2 tablespoons melted fat
1 cup chopped nuts
1 cup sifted graham flour
1 teaspoon soda
1 cup thick sour milk
1/2 cup prune juice
1/4 teaspoon baking powder
Combine sugar, salt and beaten egg. Add melted fat, nuts, prunes. Mix together soda, sour milk and prune juice. Sift baking powder and flour. Add flour to egg mix, alternately with milk mix. Beat all together and bake in greased loaf pan at 325 F. slow oven for 1 1/2 hour, or until done.

Bountiful harvests
help Oregon's growth

Despite a not-altogether favorable growing season in 1948, farm crops of Oregon add up to an impressive figure. While Oregon is growing industrially, farming is still in first place among the state's occupations and remains the biggest factor in our economy. Mountains of grain were harvested this year, wheat alone reaching a 28,830,000 bushel volume. Altogether the grains—including barley, corn, and rye—totaled 52,019,000 bushels. But this is only part of the picture, for Oregon's agriculture is highly diversified. Apples, pears and peaches yielded over eight million bushels, while flax was a two million dollar crop. Add to this bounty the millions of pounds of meat, and the smaller, but essential, contributions of dairy and poultry farms and truck gardens. All this leaves no doubt that in Oregon agriculture is a basic industry upon which much of our prosperity depends.

AS THIS REGION GROWS, SO GROWS PGE

It is a source of pride with PGE that it serves the rural community as faithfully as it serves the city. Development of rural areas has been materially helped by good electric service at low cost. PGE, one of the first electric systems in the country to extend lines into farm communities, has to date built more than 4,000 miles of such lines—three times those required to serve cities and towns. More farm lines are being built all the time as the lower Willamette Valley grows and its agriculture becomes more intensified. The result is more farm production, more prosperity for both the farmer and his neighbors in the city.
