Boy Wants to Be Chemist if He Grows Up

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 20 (AP)—Less than an hour after he told his teacher he wants to be a chemist when he grows up, a 13-year-old boy blew off his pants and the cellar door of his home. Young Larry Rose escaped with slight burns of his legs and arm in the explosion that resulted from his efforts to make a rocket. The family residence did not get off so easily. The cellar door was blasted off, a back window shattered and a neighbor's garage window blown out.

Larry explained that during his lunch hour he mixed charcoal, sulphur, potassium chlorate and cornstarch and packed it into the 3/4 inch bore of an 18-inch zinc pipe with wadding at the end. He placed it against the outside house wall, lit it, and ducked inside the cellar door to see what happened. The pipe exploded into fragments.

"I like to mix some things up and see something else turn up," he said.
