Nurses to Get Psychiatric Training Here

Contracts for all Oregon nursing schools to send students to Oregon state hospital for a three-months course in psychiatric nursing were signed during the past week at a meeting here of school directors and the institution's staff.

The hospital has offered the course for some time, with most of the schools sending students here. Beginning in 1950 the course will be mandatory for all nursing trainees.

While here the school representatives toured the wards where student nurses receive clinical experience and the dormitory facilities.

Schools included University of Oregon medical school of nursing, University of Portland college of nursing, Emanuel hospital of Portland, Portland Sanitarium and Hospital, Good Samaritan of Portland, Providence of Portland, The Dalles General hospital, Sacred Heart of Eugene, St. Anthony of Pendleton and St. Elizabeth of Baker.

It is believed that plants and animals evolved from common ancestors.

Winter Term Night Class Schedule Made

A list of adult education classes tentatively planned for the winter term of Salem's extension from the state system of higher education was announced Saturday by George Porter, adult education director. The winter term for all adult education classes will begin January 3.

The courses planned for college credit, each for three term hours, are history of the Pacific northwest, advanced mental hygiene, speech, construction and use of visual aids, all on Mondays; pottery, education of the handicapped child, both on Tuesdays; geography of North America, art structure II, special teaching methods in music, current affairs, all on Wednesdays; ceramics on Thursdays.

Persons interested in the program are asked to call the public schools adult education office with questions or with requests for added classes.

Santa's Aides Start Work on Broken Toys

Santa's helpers — in this instance members of Salem Exchange club — have begun Operation Fix-them-up on broken and damaged toys in a workshop at Siewert's warehouse, 1260 Howard st.

Collection of toys has begun and the repair crew headed by Robert Brownell will start putting them in shape for Christmas stockings Tuesday.

Chief Fix-them-up Brownell says if Salem citizens will get toys — broken, unpainted — into the hands of his toy re-makers they will repair them so that every child in the area will have something to gladden his heart on Christmas morning.

Pat Campbell, in charge of collection, reports collecting stations established at all Richfield stations, Loucks Home Fuel Oil Co., 1710 N. Commercial st., Mar-Jon Motor Co., 333 Center st., Interstate Tractor Co., Silverton road, and the office of the veterans' colony.

Willamette Valley Transfer trucks will pick up toys for the club, and persons wishing to donate to the drive may call 2-3624 for free pick-up service.

Last year, the first at toy-making for the Exchange club, more than 1,000 toys were repaired and delivered to the Salvation Army for distribution to needy children. They hope to top that figure this year.
