Pawnbrokers Eligible for Tax Exemption

A pawnbroker in temporary custody of personal property exempt from taxation is not subject to pay tax on that property, the state supreme court held Tuesday.

The opinion, by Justice Percy Kelly, was written in the suit of Esther Weinstein, executor, to restrain Tom C. Watson and Martin Pratt, assessor and tax collector respectively of Multnomah county, from enforcing an assessment made Jan. 1, 1947, involving wearing apparel pledged to and in possession of the plaintiff as a pawnbroker.

Justice Kelly wrote: "To declare that a temporary interruption of custody by the actual owner of exempt personal property destroys the exemption of such personal property for purposes of assessment and taxation would be to cause such personal property of all literary, benevolent, charitable and scientific institutions and of public libraries, as might be in possession of a third person on tax assessment day, to become taxable. Obviously, the legislature did not intend any such result, nor should the statute be so construed."

The opinion affirmed Circuit Judge Walter Tooez of Multnomah county.

Scholarship Willed to Girl By Rancher

KLAMATH FALLS, Nov. 25 - (AP) Dolores May Kidder will get the college education she wanted, because a Malin area rancher wrote his will the day he died.

The 17-year-old Klamath union high school junior gets a half interest in sale of 80 acres of ranch land under the will of John Raymond Pickett, who died November 5. The other half goes to Michael Ray Childers, 3, a nephew of Pickett.

Miss Kidder, who lives with her grandmother, Mrs. Dana Howell, said she always wanted to go to the University of Oregon. Her grandmother said it was financially impossible.

The will says specifically that the money shall be used by her to attend the university.

Miss Kidder's grandmother and the rancher were old-time friends.

Tucker Auto Due in Salem

Salem's first showing of the new Tucker automobile will be held this morning at the Southern Oregon Tucker Sales Co., 1695 Fairgrounds rd.

The Tucker with its rear engine, three headlights and ultra-modern design is hailed as the "first new car in 50 years," according to Salem dealer J. E. Lupe. The Tucker will be shown for three days, Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Laundry Workers Plan Yule Party

Salem Laundry workers union, local 107, has completed plans for a Christmas party the night of December 4 at the local labor temple.

Members and their families are to take part. Other local unions, including those of cannery workers and building laborers, also are planning yuletide parties for members and their families next month, labor officials reported this week.

Thanksgiving Celebrated in Varied Ways

By The Associated Press
In traditional Thanksgiving fashion, America celebrated its many blessings yesterday—peace, liberty and the bounty of its harvests.

For most Americans it was a day of rest and relaxation, with a turkey on the dinner table.

And the heart of the nation was gladdened with the knowledge that American prosperity was being shared with a world in want.

Observance of the historic occasion took many forms. There were family reunions, football games, banquets, parties, prayers, parades and many an event dedicated to brightening the day of the not-so-fortunate.

President Truman, like countless other citizens, had turkey and trimmings with his family. But the president put in a morning's work at his White house desk before sitting down to the festive board.

New York and Philadelphia had gigantic parades, featuring a pre-emptive visit from old Santa himself. New York's event, down Central Park West and Broadway, drew staggering throngs of delighted youngsters—and their elders, too. Police estimated the total at 2,250,000.

Merriment Makers
Squeals of glee greeted not only St. Nick but giant Helium-filled balloons representing such things as a pirate and a crocodile, a candy cane, monkey on a trapeze and countless other merriment makers.

Police holding the crowds back winkingly turned the other way when kids scouted under barricades to get a better look.

The early morning hours brought an occurrence which was not a usual feature of Thanksgiving day but which nevertheless was heartily welcomed. Union and employer representatives reached agreement on terms to settle the long and costly East Coast dock workers' strike. Union members must approve the settlement, however.

Among other things, the strike has held up countless European aid shipments.

Strikers Eat Dinners
Hundreds of the striking longshoremen happily sat down later to turkey dinners provided by a group of AFL unions.

A group of 23 persons had a special reason to give thanks in Los Angeles. An airliner on which they were riding made a bumpy landing in a fog at the airport there and caught fire and burned. The passengers got quite a jolt but they and the crew escaped injury.

Displaced Persons
In New York, a group of 63 displaced persons arrived in time to help celebrate the day. En route from Munich, Germany, to new homes in Caracas, Venezuela, they had a real old-fashioned American holiday dinner at International airport during a stopover.

The group ranged in age from five months to 70 years.

All enjoyed the repast, but they showed particular appreciation of the great amounts of butter and milk on the tables.

Traditional—in its own way—was the annual dinner of the vegetarian society of New York. The 175 members sat down to a $3.50 dinner of vegetables, but they had pumpkin pie in honor of the occasion. Speakers urged that vegetarianism be adopted throughout the world.

Another notable occasion was that on New York's Bowery—home of the down-and-outers. Dinner was served to all who asked, and three habits of the area were selected by the Bowery Comeback association for financial and other aid in a new start in life.

Twenty-four per cent of American land is forested.

School Patrol Nabs Speeder

ASTORIA, Nov. 25 - (AP) - The Astoria school traffic patrol has nabbed its first speeder.

Johnny Pedro, 10, signaled for a motorist to stop at an intersection where school children were crossing. The motorist didn't do it, so Johnny took his license number.

Police booked Donald C. Link, 26, a civilian fireman at Tongue Point naval station, who wasn't going to any fire.

Doctors' Clinic To Open Soon
Occupation of his new offices at 2495 Center st. was announced Thursday by Dr. Carl W. Emmons, joining Dr. Emmons in the medical center clinic is Dr. John R. McNicholas from Ann Arbor, Mich.

The 10-room clinic is adjacent to the Salem General hospital. Other buildings still under construction at the center will house the Power, Buren, Miller, Lancefield, King clinic and the Findley, Clement, Baum, Thompson and Dunham clinic.

The former will occupy offices in December. At that time they and Dr. Emmons and Dr. McNicholas plan an open house.
