Medical Group To Continue Radio Series

Terminating the state medical society's radio series "a vital adjunct to the health education program of Oregon elementary schools," an advisory committee recommended continuance of the programs after a conference Monday night in the Marion hotel.

Titled "The Doctor Comes to School," the radio series has been presented the past 13 weeks over KOAC, KBPS and KRVM under the direction of David Hoss, field secretary for the society. Hoss said a second series will begin February 1, to continue weekly on Tuesdays at 1:45 p.m.

The programs have featured elementary school pupils and physicians and dentists.

Meeting here as the advisory committee were George Sirmio and Katherine Rahl of the state education department, Frances Gilbert of KRVM, Mrs. Lana Lu Hull of KOAC, Dr. Stanley Lamb of the medical society, Dr. Willard J. Stone, Marion county health officer, Mrs. George Moorhead of University of Oregon, and Hoss.

Queens county, New York, was noted for horse races as early as 1665.
