LIU Beats Ducks Again, 55-53

Sunday's game: Of Ed Gayda, the six-foot, three-inch blond who leads the way for WSC's cage Cougars, Coach Jack Friel says this: "He's the best basketball player I've ever seen in all my years at it. I wouldn't trade him for any player I've even seen anywhere." And when you consider that Friel, in his 20-odd years at Pullman has seen the likes of Gale Bishop, Bobby Galer, Hal Lee, Hank Luisetti, Laddy Gale, Wally Palmberg, etc., you get the idea that the WSC skipper thinks Gayda is a bit of all right... Speaking of the Cougars, did you know that every single member of the squad, including coach, manager and towel boy is a native of the state of Washington? Nary an immigrant. Proving that you can grow 'em good enough, particularly how the more "major league" college quints are now scoring only 40 or 50 points, where a few years back they were in the sixties, seventies and eighties regularly...

Offensive play was forgotten in 99 percent of the games with scores like 40-35 and 34-32, instead of 99-98 and 86-75. A very good example of what we mean came in the St. Louis U.-Oklahoma A&M scuffle the other night. Two of the country's best, the Okies won 29-27 in an overtime period. And it wasn't that both sides were "cold." It was defense that did it. Next time you take a look at a list of nationwide basketball scores, notice particularly how the more "major league" college quints are now scoring only 40 or 50 points, where a few years back they were in the sixties, seventies and eighties regularly...

'Ol Bulldog Is at It Again, With Camera

Our favorite rascal's character is at it again, although not now in actual warfare. We mean Bulldog Jackson of course, the old bloke who put the mean in mat mania and the "h" on grappling hilarity. The Bulldog's latest prank is seconding for his protegee Bulldog Clements. And often enough Jackson jumps right in to help his protegee make mayhem on an enemy. But best of all is the current "Flashgun" Jackson, the grizzled old cove who hops in the ring with his camera and takes pictures of Clements after the latter has spilled a foe. Only Ed Bulldog could hatch such pranks as that, and get by with 'em...

Vikings Can Make It If They Get Together

Being tattled around certain parts of the Vik Villa is a tale of how Keith Farnam and Benny Pitzer, ace pointmen for Harold Hauk's crew, are involved in a private feud to see which one can outdo the other and be the team's big shot. Pooey! Surely athletes of their age and experience realize full well that such goings-on can only hurt the entire team and impede its progress toward Eugene and a possible state championship. And the Vikings definitely have what it takes to go right on through to the title. We doubt if the shoozers are acting up thusly, but if they are they should be ashamed of themselves. Anyway, from what we saw of little Bud Duval against the Rocks the other night, Farnam and Pitzer aren't the only pieces of backbone on the team. There's a lad who can drive in and hit 'em the hard way...

Vico Now Has Competition in Tony Lupien

No actual say-so by the Detroit Tigers has been forthcoming, but the way one can look at their love for former White Sox first baseman Tony Lupien is an indication that George Vico doesn't hold the key to the lock on the Tiger initial sack. Twice the Sox placed Lupien on the block and the Detroiters tried to get him on waivers. They finally made it last week. Perhaps new Tiger Mgr. Red Rolfe doesn't think as well of Big George as did Steve O'Neill. But then this is merely a guess from 2500 miles away... Molalla Coach Budd Gronquist, the Monmouth high menter last year, really had his drawers on, so to speak, when the district No. 5 basketball men got together the other night to ready their pre-state tournament playoff. Budd's fate goes like this after his drawing for it: Oregon City plays Milwaukie Friday, March 4. West Linn plays the winner of that game, and Molalla plays Canby on the following Monday night. Then the two winners of that night get together to see which one goes to Eugene and the tournament. In short, Gronquist has but two games to play, and one against Canby, a team he should beat easily. Yes, the No. 5 playoff is to be the "sudden death" single elimination...

Vandals Upset WSC; Bevos Win

Idaho Snares 41-32 Verdict

Pullman Club Takes First League Loss

NORTHERN DIVISION STANDINGS

W	L	Pct.	W	L	Pct.
Ore. State	5	1	833	Washington	3	5	372
Wash. St.	1	233	Idaho	2	6	250
Oregon	3	5	372

Saturday results: At Oregon State 49, Washington 45; at Washington State 32, Idaho 41.

PULLMAN, Wash., Jan. 29 (AP)—Lowly Idaho scored a stunning 41 to 32 upset victory over Washington State tonight to hand the league leading Cougars their first basketball defeat of the season in the northern division of the Pacific Coast conference. The Vandals, who led all the way, held a 21 to 16 advantage at half-time.

Big Ed Gayda, although guarded by three men at times, was the whole show for Washington State, scoring six of his team's nine field goals and 13 of the Cougars' 15 points in the second half.

But the scrappy Vandals put the clamps on the rest of the Cougars and threw in a complete new team every time Coach Jack Friel of WSC inserted one of his three platoons.

The Cougars came close only once in the second half. With nine minutes gone the Vandals led by 32 to 29 as Gayda fired 10 quick points through the hoop. Then Nick Stallworth, lanky Idaho center, was ejected from the game after an exchange with Gordy Prehm and things looked bad for the Vandals.
