

$16,000,000 State Building Program for Next 10 Years Is Discussed by Committee

A state institution building program, estimated to cost approximately $16,000,000 and covering a 10-year period, was discussed by a sub-group of the legislative joint ways and means committee Thursday.

Only those institutions under jurisdiction of the state board of control would be included in the program. It was generally agreed by ways and means committee members that such a program should be referred to the voters at a special election which would make it possible to provide the required funds outside the 6 per cent constitutional limitation amendment.

Committee members stressed that it would be impossible to finance the suggested capital outlay program at the state institutions out of the general fund. Largest over-all allocation of the $16,000,000, approximately $5,532,600, would be earmarked for the Oregon state hospital here. The priority list for this institution would include an employees' dormitory to cost $400,000, tuberculosis and diabetic building $400,000, administration building $1,900,000, commissary building $120,000, and furnishings for 44 wards in the present hospital structure $125,000. The administration building item also would include remodeling of the institution kitchen, dining room, bakery and refrigeration plant.

Of the $3,043,000 required for Fairview home $400,000 would be allocated to a new kitchen and dining room. Listed for the Oregon state tuberculosis hospital here is $661,000, of which $300,000 is required for an employees' dormitory. Other priority items at this institution include $175,000 for elevator and annex, $6000 for service tunnel to nurses' home, $3500 for enclosed porch on administration buildings and $300,000 for furnishing 50 room employees' dormitory.

At the Oregon state training school priority items include $35,000 for infirmary and receiving center, $25,000 for sewage disposal plant, $12,000 for commissary building and $30,000 for employees' quarters. Items listed for this institution include expenditures of $605,900.

Of $853,000 listed for the Oregon deaf school $270,000 would be allocated for a boys' dormitory plus furnishings. Allocations for the state blind school would total $848,000, with an administration building to cost $180,000 listed as a priority. A school building to cost $312,000 also is proposed as a must at this institution.

More Assistance For Blind Sought In House Bills

A series of bills designed to alter laws affecting the blind were introduced in the house Thursday by Reps. Grace O. Peck, Phil Brady and Gust Anderson, all of Portland.

They would change the name of the Oregon Blind Trades school (in Portland) to Oregon Service Center for the Blind; allow the commission for the blind to provide $300 a year, for readers and subsistence, to blind students at

Heated Debate Delays Bill On Pay of Solons

A measure to boost Oregon legislators' pay to $1,200 a year stalled in the senate Thursday after sharp verbal jabs were exchanged in a 90-minute debate.

The resolution, written by Sen. Richard L. Neuberger of Portland, was sent back to the senate's elections and privileges committee by a 19 to 11 vote. Any legislative pay raise would be referred to the voters. It would not be applicable this session.

Sen. Frank Patterson, Hillsboro, asked for the referral so that the senate would have a chance to vote on another bill calling for a smaller wage increase.

The elections and privileges committee had voted 4 to 1 to kill the bill. The present salary for lawmakers is $8 a day for 50 days, or $400 a biennium.

Senator Neuberger said that "legislators should get enough pay to feel they could spend some time between sessions on state problems," and cited that Oregon's legislative pay was fourth from the bottom of the nation's list.

Sen. Angus Gibson, Junction City, chairman of the committee that voted against the proposal, said "There's no use in passing this bill. We'd just be cluttering up the ballot with another measure the people would turn down."

Sen. Allan Carson, Salem, supported some form of pay hike. He said under present conditions "on-

Mattresses, Pay Get Tangled in Legislative Error

A legal blunder mixed mattresses and county salaries in the same bill Wednesday. And a chuckling senator hastily withdrew the measure just in time to avert its final passage.

The house bill, up for final action in the senate, was intended to revise the mattress manufacturing code. By some inadvertent error in the house, the measure ended up by mentioning sections dealing with county pay scales.

Sen. Austin Flegel, Portland, who withdrew the bill said it bordered on "padding the payroll."
