

Seen and Heard...

LADIES NIGHT . . . on Wednesday when the Rotary men entertained their wives at dinner in the newly redecorated ballroom of the Marion hotel . . . Always a highlight of the year for the club . . . The decor something to talk about . . . The tables centered with red cellophane sweetheart trees with cupid and hearts hanging on the branches with gardenias at the tip of each branch . . . at either end of the tables tall vases of acacia and pussy-willows . . . and the speaker's table centered with a striking bouquet of white carnations and gardenias interspersed with red ribbon and at either end a sweetheart tree . . . The table was larded with smilax . . . and large baskets of greens and fern in the corners . . . A corsage for each lady . . . she had her choice of gardenias, roses or carnations . . . The president's wife, Mrs. Harry Johnson, wearing a handsome gown of black with shirred skirt . . . Snow in Portland kept the two speakers away . . . but Dr. Robert D. Gregg of Willamette university did a grand job of pinch-hitting . . .

SOLOIST . . . Friday night at the Portland chamber orchestra concert at the Neighbors of Woodcraft auditorium was June Director Nagel, violinist, former Salem girl . . . June made her concert debut in Salem at the age of ten when she played in Elizabeth Levy's string orchestra . . . She has since made concert appearances in California and Portland, including a previous performance with the Portland Chamber orchestra in 1947 . . . She was concertmaster for the Mills college orchestra while attending school in the south . . . At the Friday night concert she played A-minor concerto for violin and orchestra by the 18th century composer, Antonio Vivaldi . . .

AU REVOIRS . . . soon to be said to the Eugene Tupker family . . . They plan to move to St. Helens in mid-February, where Dr. Tupker will enter private practice . . . with them go their three children, Gene Ann, Jane and Bill . . . Dr. Tupker has been on the staff of the Oregon State hospital . . .

MOVING NOTE . . . The Al Loucks family, with the help of their friends, moved the past week to their newly built home on Fairmount Hill . . . Their house is on West Washington street with grand view windows overlooking the city and the mountain range . . . Beautiful wallpaper in many of the rooms . . . Their daughters, Judy and Suzanne, only wish there would be more snow so they could take advantage of the hill with their sleds . . .

NOT ALL IS SUNNY . . . in California according to reports we've heard . . . Jane Collins (Mrs. Bradford), who is up from her Berkeley home, says even her water pipes have frozen . . . and days when she has hung out her washing, it comes in frozen . . . As several of us have remarked lately, "we are glad to live in the sunny, south, at Salem . . . as apparently there has been snow all around us . . . inches more than we have had . . . Portland hadn't recovered from the first storm, when the second came . . .

A SIGN OF SPRING . . . generally, this time of year we are talking about the first crocuses and bulbs to peep through the ground . . . camellias in bloom . . . and spring styles the favorite topic among women . . . but not this year thus far . . . If we remember correctly Frank Doerfler had loads of camellias in bloom two years ago during the legislative session, with blossoms for all the ladies . . . but so far only a few have bloomed this year . . . and at Mrs. Douglas McKay's tea on Wednesday he sent camellias only to the women assisting . . .

Straw chapeaux . . . they have been scarce too . . . but a few we have spotted . . . Sen. Jack Bain's attractive wife of Portland wearing a deep green straw with chiffon drape . . . Mrs. William E. Walsh of Coos Bay, pouring at one of the teas, was seen wearing a shiny brown straw with perky chartreuse feather . . . so maybe if the weather man ever makes up his mind spring will blossom forth all at once . . .

PARTY OF THE WEEK . . . Mrs. William J. Busick and Mrs. Harry U. Miller were luncheon hostesses on Friday afternoon at the Busick home . . . they invited their guests to come attired in old fashioned costumes as if they were going to a luncheon in the Gay Nineties . . . Each and everyone came dressed in her best "bib and tucker" of the period and acted their parts throughout the afternoon, even to the hostesses . . . One group, instead of arriving in horse and buggy, as in the olden days, came in a station wagon . . . quite a sight to see the women in their long skirts, boots and parasols getting out of a modern convey-

but . . . Friday was without a doubt the most "yes and no" day we've ever seen. Mother Nature, just like a woman, couldn't make up her mind . . .

Overworked . . . Being music editor these days is really sumpin' and don't ever let us hear anyone say that Salem is Music Starved. In the next few weeks we'll be having choirs, pianists, singers and gleemen galore . . .

Also working . . . we are told by the foreman over at the iron works that lights are on at night over there for the very simple reason that there's a night shift working, and who can think of anything more encouraging than that . . .

Old friends . . . everytime we feel even a teeny weeny bit downhearted, all we need to do is look at our old Clarion annual and see the now solid citizens as they were away back in the dim past. It was during a former military training period when the boys wore wrap-around leggings and stern faces with their natty uniforms and the girls had long skirts and middies . . .

Our fault . . . We're positively embarrassed to go home, because there's Queen the cow, standing at the barnyard gate, looking at us with doleful eyes and ringing her little Swiss bell and practically begging us to do something about a little green grass for her. Anyway the hay surely is running out. We believe Queenie thinks we control the weather . . .
