Reactivation of Tower Waits On Equipment

As soon as transmitters and receivers are installed the Salem airport control tower will be reactivated, Airport Manager Wallace Hug said Saturday.

"The tower crew is here," Hug said. "The civil aeronautics administration was supposed to have sent someone to install the transmitters and receivers early last week. Perhaps he will arrive this week."

It was hoped to have the tower in operation by February 15. About a week will be required to ready the tower and install the remaining equipment after the installing agent arrives, Hug said.

The tower, on the west side of the field, was first used by the army air force during the war. It was again in operation last summer when flood waters forced most of Portland's commercial airline flights to use the local field.

Week of Religious Emphasis To Begin Tuesday on Campus

Preparation for Willamette university's annual Religious Emphasis week, to be observed Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, were completed this weekend under supervision of Willamette's Interfaith council and Dean of Students Raymond A. Withey.
