Bearcats Drop 58-51 Clash To Whitman, See Hopes Fade

RTSLIGHTNER

Jo Jo White, the Seattle manager and a visitor to the WI league's banquet the other night, came up with a cutie when he was asked to render a few words. The Jo Jo from Georgia got off with a story, on a hunting experience, which went something like this: He and Charley Gehringer, a etroit Tiger, teammate, were deer hunting in Canada. They hired an Indian guide who placed them on stands at the head of a draw, and then went down into the draw to chase the deer toward the waiting White and Gehringer. "Pretty soon here comes a big buck," drawled Jo Jo in his Georgian tones. "I drew a bead, but bang Gehringer shot first and down went the deer. We ran to it and Charley tied his tag on the horns. Then he reached for his Bowie knife, but just when he started to do some cutting up jumped the deer and took off over a small hill. We started chasing the thing, but hardly got going when bang! bang! -we hear somebody cut loose like he has a machine gun. We galloped over the hill and there we see our deer, deader'n a mackerel, with some great big guy, his chest about to bust the buttons off his shirt, standing over it. 'Hey', we heyed at him. You shot our deer there.

"'Your deer?' he grinned. 'I just shot him when he came over that "Well he's got our tag on him-lookee there." At which Messrs.

White and Gehringer pointed to the famed second baseman's tag tied around the fallen deer's antler. "'Well I'll be,' snorted the guy. 'Anybody crazy or fast enough to tag one of those things on the run deserves him. Take him, he's all

County Tournament Unjust to Real Champs

Another of the upset-filled and purely silly basketball tournaments is now in progress at Willamette U, and we hope the Marion County B leaguers who voted it in are getting their fill of it. After playing all season long to determine divisions champions, the loop bosses chucked the works and threw all but 12 teams into a "sudden death" playoff instead of putting together the two division titlists to play it off, two out of three, for what would have been a sure championship. The result? Both Gervais and Mill City, easily two of the top teams all season long, eliminated in upsets by teams which proved to be inferior to them over the six-week campaign. Tournaments such as this one just don't make . Another tournament that we know won't take place again is The Statesman bowling meet. Altogether too many squawks along the way in the one just finished. We might add that the paper was in no way responsible for the rules governing the conclave, or the way in which it was directed. We merely allowed the use of The Statesman name as a measure of stimulat-

Sowers Developing Fast for Webfoots

One of the most improved players in the Northern Division cage chase-improved to the extent that he's now on the terrific side-is Oregon's Paul Sowers. The former Baker prep looks better every time we see him, and against WSC over the weekend he was easily one of the top operators in the crucial games. Sowers is exceptionally fast, is uncanny with his passing, can shoot well with either hand from in close or afar and is defensively sound. A transfer from Vanport, Sowers is now a junior with another season left to play for the Webfoots. Also, he was an "all-stater" in the 1943 tournament here, along with Astoria's Cliff Crandall and Pendleton's Jim Catterall, who now play for OSC. We've already wired a change on our selections for district eight all-star honors, adding Sowers' name . . . Hobson's Yales Going Great in East

Better be keeping an eye on the Yale cage team and its famed Tony Lavelli, bossed by Howard Hobson. The Bulldogs have won for the season and amount to the top team now performing in the NCAA's District 1. Which means that if they keep it up, they're apt to be present next month at Seattle when the NCAA's top four teams got together for the national championship . . . Oddity: California All-American Jackie Jensen's father is a janitorin, of all places, the freshman dormitory at Stanford U . . . For the first time in years, Idaho's Vandals have this season defeated every team in the Northern Division.

WALLA WALLA, Feb. 14-(Special)-Willamette university's hope for a Northwest conference basketball championship was handed a non-appreciated "valentine" tonight when the Whitman Missionaries led practically throughout to take a 58-51 victory over the visitors. It was 33-28 at halftime and only once, when the score was 2-0, did the Bearcats enjoy a lead. The loss was No. 2 for Coach Johnny Lewis' team in league play, as against four wins. The leading Lewis & Clark Pioneers, who play Willamette at Salem Friday night, have six wins, one loss. The Bearcats remain in second place, half a game up on Whitman.

The Cats, who have had better shooting percentages this season than they had tonight, rose to a 26-26 tie shortly before halftime, but dropped back when Blickenstaff and Jack Heron, Whit sharpshooters, bucketed the home team ahead. The Methodists whacked the lead to four points with three minutes left to play, but again Heron & Co. took over to hike the margin.

Whitman played a ball control and set-'em-up offensive game, and most of the feeding was done to the six-foot, three-inch Heron. a sophomore and one of the conference's top scorers.

Only Center Jim Johnson of Willamette seemed to be up on his shooting. He hemped 12 markers, six more than brother Bob and guard Ted could muster. The Bearcats will leave here tomorrow for home. Road conditions

Dick Morton was a busy and prosperous gent on Capitol bowling lleys Sunday afternoon. He bowled four games in the third round of the last annual Statesman kegling tournament, and became the last person to qualify for the grand finals, slated for 4 o'clock that day.

Then, rolling against ten bowlers who had previously earned finals Winners berths, Morton posted an 816 score

Final round scores were on a low level throughout. Pete Valdez, who had tossed the top series of the entire tournament, 886, in first-round action three weeks ago, could fashion only 726 in the finals and wound up in seventh place.

Twelve persons - the top four finishers in each of three preliminary rounds—had been listed as finalists. One of them, B. Barkland, failed to show up for Sunday's session.
