MACLEAY, Feb. 24 - Oregon doesn't produce nearly so much pork as its population consumes, Elton Watts, Silverton, told more than one hundred members and guests of Marion County Livestock association at a dinner meeting here tonight in the grange hall.

Watts, one of a group whom: members reported action of the Western Oregon Livestock association which met recently at Gearhart, stated it was the recommendation of his committee that an increase in swine production in Oregon be made on the farm basis and not the large industry basis. Recommendations Heard

Other recommendations made tonight and coming out from the Gearhart meeting included that all public lands be seeded to pasture mixtures immediately after burning in order to conserve moisture, stop erosion and prevent weed growth; that because screenings brought back to the farms from cleaning plants and fed livestock. scattered obnoxious weed seed this practice be stopped; and that where industrial plants contaminating neighboring farm soils which had been used for cattle pasturing. livestockmen should be entitled to Indemnities.

In reference to the latter it was pointed out that forage fields near the aluminum plants along the Columbia could no longer be used for pasturing. Recommendation was Denies Spying commerce to endeavor to have in-dustrial plants to be built in the On Russians future situated on cheaper lands and not near the better farmlands.
