

Milk Control Sustained in Senate Ballot

The second attempt of the session to throw out Oregon's milk control law was killed in the senate Thursday 22 to 8. The house earlier this week defeated the same proposal.

By adopting a "do not pass" report by the senate agriculture committee, the upper house beat back what will probably be the final attempt of the session to kill the 1933 milk control law.

Sen. Richard Neuberger, Portland, urged passage of the bill, claiming that "Oregon now has a complete and oppressive milk control law which creates a virtual monopoly for some distributors and holds up housewives with a legislative gun."

Sen. Howard Belton, Canby, defended the milk law, saying it was enacted when the milk industry was in chaos and milk was being poured into ditches. He said it is serving a good purpose.

Voting for the repeal were Senators Bain, Carson, Dunn, Flegel, Gardner, Mahoney, Neuberger and Rand.

Widened Use Of Trust Fund Money Voted

A measure to permit trust companies and trust administrators to invest trust funds in stocks and bond was passed in the senate and sent to the House Thursday after a lengthy debate.

The bill amended the "prudent man" law enacted by the legislature in 1947. The present law permits an administrator to invest trust funds prudently in any type of investment he deems worthy, but does not specifically name stocks or bonds.

Another senate measure going to the house would allow operation of osteopathic hospitals approved by the National Association of Osteopathic Surgeons.

The senate sent to the governor a house bill to permit any person to fill out an election ballot for a blind person. The function now is confined to election officials.

The senators voted 18 to 12 to kill a proposal to permit St. Helens' port commission to build and operate a hospital, but will probably reconsider their action later this week.

Klamath Falls School Likely to Get New Lease

Members of a legislative subcommittee on ways and means announced Thursday they will recommend that the Oregon Technical school at Klamath Falls remain in operation for two more years.

The school was threatened with closure this year when its requested $1,800,000 appropriation for the next two years was left out of the budget.

The subcommittee said it has trimmed the request to $1,000,000. The school is operated by the state division of vocational education under a bill passed in the 1947 session.

Installs Control Tower Panel

Radio facilities and office equipment are being installed in the air traffic tower this week as preparations are being made for its use at Salem airport. Shown above is W. E. Chambers, Seattle, Wash., civil aeronautics authority technician, at work on an instrument panel in the control room of the tower. Just when the tower will be ready for operation is not yet definitely known, being dependent upon arrival of all the radio and power equipment. (Statesman photo).

Officials Aim At Loafers on State Payroll

Gov. Douglas McKay and State Treasurer Walter J. Pearson Thursday asked the legislative salary committee to "fire the loafers" among state employees and give the others salary boosts.

McKay told the committee "you should put the heat on department heads and fire some of these loafers."

"During the war," McKay told the seven-man committee, "the state hired a lot of people who ordinarily would be non-employable. Now we can afford to fire them."

Pearson agreed that some inefficient employees could be fired, but added that substantial wage increases are needed.

The discussion arose over a proposal to give all state employees an additional $10 a month increase.

Increased Pay for Linn Officials Asked

Reps. Warren Gill and Max Landon introduced a bill in the house Thursday to increase the pay of Linn county officials for the next two years. Proposed pay is: Judge, clerk, sheriff $3900; commissioners and school superintendent $3700; treasurer and recorder $3500.

The house highway committee will hold a hearing next Wednesday afternoon on proposals to increase state gasoline taxes and

Limit Sought in Firework Sale

Rep. Rudie Wilhelm, jr. of Portland and a dozen other legislators introduced a bill in the house Thursday to bar the sale of all fireworks except from June 20 to July 5 inclusive. Exempted would be toy guns shooting caps with an explosive content of .25 grains or less.

Assessment for Special License Numbers Likely

It may cost car owners $1 each to get special license numbers next year.

Anyone can get a special number now by requesting it from the secretary of state. The possibility of the extra charge arose in a meeting of the joint ways and means committee Thursday where it was revealed that the special numbers cost the state $36,000 a year.

The committee decided to study the matter further.

The American Woman Suffrage Association passed out of existence in 1920 when women received the vote. Its place was taken by the National League of Women Voters.
