The Oregon Statesman, Salem, Oregon, Sunday, March 13, 1949

Who Will Be Queen?...

Seventeen pretty Salem high school girls are vying for the title of Civics Club Carnival Queen. Each girl represents the different clubs in the school and the queen's identity will be kept a secret until the night of the carnival, March 25. Each club also presents a skit during the show and the theme this year is "So This is Salem".

The princesses will be introduced at a student body assembly on March 22. Diane Perry is general chairman of the carnival and Margie Acton is her assistant.

Teas, Luncheons Slated

Teas, luncheons and dances will highlight the social slate during the coming week.

For Thursday afternoon is the informal tea for which the board members of the Oregon State college mothers club will be hostesses at the North Summer street home of Mrs. Wolcott Buren. Calling hours are between 2:30 and 5:30 o'clock. Bidden are all Oregon State mothers, mothers of former students, mothers of prospective students and anyone interested in Oregon State. Legislator's wives, who are mothers of Oregon State students, are being invited through the press to attend.

Hostesses for the affair are Mrs. L. O. Arens, president of the group, Mrs. George Rhoten, Mrs. Carl Miller and Mrs. David Brown. Pouring will be Mrs. Roy Houck and Mrs. George Croisan.

Luncheons on Agenda

Mrs. Abner K. Kline will be a hostess on Wednesday and Thursday afternoons of this week at her North 5th street home for a group of friends. Guests have been bidden to one o'clock luncheons to be followed by bridge. Spring flowers will be used by the hostess in decorating.

Bidden on Wednesday are Mesdames W. E. Hutchens, Fred Kirby, Henry Hanzen, J. N. Chambers, A. D. Woodmansee, Estes Morton, Lloyd Riches, Oscar Cutler, Lynn Lambeth, John L. Franzen, Percy R. Kelly and Howard Pickett. Thursday's guests include Mesdames James T. Brand, Ralph H. Cooley, Homer Smith, Jr., James H. Nicholson, Wheeler R. English, Carl Chambers, Wilber Pantier, Stayton, Gene Vandeneynde, Fred Keeler, John B. Powell, Turner, Charles Fowler and Farley Mogan.

Mrs. Henry Hanzen will preside at luncheon and bridge on Monday afternoon at her South High street home. Her guests include Mesdames Gene Vandeneynde, Edgar A. Linden, Carl Chambers, W. E. Hutchens, Charles Cole, Oscar Cutler, L. C. McLeod, J. M. Devers, Roy Houck, David Cameron, Albert Gragg and R. D. Paris. Arrangements of spring flowers will provide the decorative note.

ON THE steps of the First Presbyterian church are two of the Civics club carnival princesses, Betty Bangert, who represents the Paletteers; and Janie Pearcy of the French club.

Legislative Social Whirl

Even though legislators are busy with committee meetings during the last weeks of the session, they find time to accept a few dinner and luncheon engagements.

Tuesday afternoon will be Mrs. Douglas McKay's weekly at home with all interested townspeople and visitors in the city welcome to call during the afternoon at the governor's home on Jervis avenue.

Speaker of the House and Mrs. Frank Van Dyke and Rep. and Mrs. Joseph Dyer of Astoria, who have been entertaining with a series of informal dinner parties during the session, will be hosts for a similar affair Monday night at their Kingwood Heights home for a group of their Salem friends.

Newbrys to Entertain

Secretary of State and Mrs. Earl T. Newbry will be hosts for two informal at homes this week at their East Rural avenue residence. The affairs will be held Tuesday and Thursday nights with members of the house of representatives and their wives bidden to call.

Luncheons on Agenda

A group of representatives' wives, Mrs. C. L. Lluellen of Pendleton, Mrs. Ralph T. Moore of Coos Bay, Mrs. Giles French of Moro, and Mrs. M. M. Landon of Sweet Home will entertain with a 12 o'clock luncheon on Thursday at the Golden Pheasant. Their guests will include wives of representatives and the St. Patrick Day motif will be used in the table appointments.

Also planned for Thursday is the luncheon for which Mrs. C. C. Chapman of Portland will be hostess at the Marion hotel in compliment to a group of her legislative friends. Covers will be placed for twenty-four and the St. Patrick motif will be used in decorating.

Bidden to Dinner

Two dinners are on the social slate for Wednesday night. Sen. Russell L. Gardner of Newport will entertain a group of his legislative friends at a crab supper. Dr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Purvine will also be dinner hosts Wednesday night at their Saginaw street residence for the pleasure of a group of their friends here during the legislature.
