Egg White Mixture One of Many New Ideas Gained from Candy Expert

I got a lot out of the candy schools put on by E. Remington Davenport, but believe that one of the most valuable ideas is that for making marshmallow whip.

It's quite a simple affair, yet costs a good deal in the stores. In candy making "mazzetta," as it's called, is used in fondant. It is folded into the candy mass while being worked to a cream.

MARSHALLOW WHIP
Whip a medium sized egg white until stiff but not dry, slowly add 1/2 cup glucose brought to a boil (or a generous 1/2 cup corn syrup added to the soft ball stage or 254 degrees). Whip until the mixture thickens, it may take some time.

This mixture stands up well in the refrigerator. It's good to pour over ice cream and top with chocolate sauce and nuts, goes in the middle of chocolate roll as a filling or can even be used as a frosting for cake when flavored. It is not very sweet.

When being added to fondant,
