

National Seed Meeting Set

First annual meeting of the 42 year-old Association of Official Seed Analysts and Society of Commercial Seed Technologists to be held in the west has been scheduled for Oregon State college June 27 through July 1, announces Mrs. Louisa A. Kanipe, in charge, cooperative federal-state seed laboratory, Corvallis.

The convention, which will attract approximately 200 seed technologists from the United States and Canada, has never been held further west than North Dakota, says Mrs. Kanipe. She points out that holding the meeting at OSC will have promotional value for Oregon's seed industry since many of the visitors are combining their vacations with attendance at the convention.

An effort will be made to show visitors Oregon seed-producing areas as well as processing plants. The convention itself will be concerned with problems and advancements in research, seed law enforcement, education, and seed-testing procedures, Mrs. Kanipe concludes.

1949 Spring Lamb Loss Reported Large

Larger loss than usual of lambs in the Willamette valley is being reported this spring. A number of growers have experienced losses from stiff lambs. Other lambs have shown indications of parasitical infections.

Woodburn Cows Score High Rating

Three registered Jersey cows owned by I. F. Buyserie & Son of Woodburn, are announced by The American Cattle club as Tested Dams having three offspring with official production records. These tests were authenticated by the State college of Agriculture and The American Jersey Cattle club and exceeded by more than two and one-half times the butterfat production of the average dairy cow in the United States.

The tested progeny of these three cows, with all records computed to a 305 day twice daily milking mature basis averaged 8,082 pounds milk, 5.2 per cent test and 422 pounds butterfat for Volunteer Cartagena Hazel; Sybil Nancy Annabel with 8,650 pounds milk, 6.1 per cent test and 528 pounds butterfat, and Edith Rosella Melissa with 9,858 pounds milk, 5.8 per cent test and 372 pounds butterfat.

GRASS SEED GOOD

Certified Alta fescue seed, 1949 crop, will have a price support of 35 cents a pound. Certified Alta seed production looks as good as any crop over a period of years, says J. J. Inskeep, Clackamas county extension agent.

college, urges owners of lambs that die of an unknown cause, to bring them immediately to the veterinary department in the poultry building, OSC, where they will be examined. Dr. Shaw also suggests bringing lambs or ewes which are not doing well.
