

Easter Morning Breakfast Can Be Good to Look at and Filling, Too

By Maxine Buren

Woman's Editor, The Statesman

If you are going to entertain for Easter breakfast, might as well make something of it.

For instance, how about a piece of lovely ham, fried just right and served with a circle of glazed pineapple atop it? Added to that might be some bright yellow scrambled eggs garnished with a strip of pimiento and served with some hot baking powder biscuits.

Here is another menu that sounds fit to be served:

- Orange juice
- Shirred eggs and liver
- Buttered toast
- Jelly
- Coffee

SHIRRED EGGS WITH LIVER
Cut liver in small pieces and broil or pan fry quickly to brown. Butter individual baking dishes and drop an egg into each. Arrange small pieces of liver around the eggs. Bake in a slow oven (325 degrees) until eggs are as firm as desired. It will take about 5 minutes. Garnish with parsley and season with salt and pepper. Serve at once.

Or perhaps you'd like a good old fashioned he-man breakfast like this one:

- Broiled grapefruit halves
- Buckwheat pancakes
- Grilled sausages
- Maple syrup
- Coffee

Good recipes can be found in most any cookbook, or the regular mixture bought in the grocery store can be used.

Here's another husky menu:

- Fresh strawberries
- Cream
- Chipped beef on waffle quarters
- Coffee

Or perhaps this menu:
Chilled tomato juice
French toast
Maple syrup
Grilled bacon
Coffee

Missile Range Bill Approved

WASHINGTON, April 11 (AP) — A bill to provide the air force with a 3,000-mile range to test its guided missiles passed the senate Monday. The proposed location was not stated.

Already approved by the house, the $75,000,000 bill was sent back there for agreement on senate changes.

Meanwhile, Air Secretary Symington told a house armed services subcommittee that air force pilots have flown "hundreds of miles per hour beyond the speed of sound." The speed of sound at sea level is 764 miles an hour.

"From a safety standpoint," the report said, guided missiles "will be no more dangerous than commercial airplanes flying overhead and from a nuisance standpoint they will be less objectionable."

Show Proves Fat Hog Not Always Best

By Lillie L. Madsen

Farm Editor, The Statesman

Fat hogs are no longer the best hogs — not from the packers' point of view. This was proved at the first carcass show sponsored jointly by the Oregon Swine Growers, Oregon State college and Valley Packing plant. The show started Thursday at the state fairgrounds in an on-hoof judging contest, and ended Tuesday at the packing plant in a dressed carcass judging.

It is very difficult to judge a hog on the hoof," Frank Cross of the packing plant, stated. The hogs that were judged as best live weight at the state fairgrounds, came out lowest in the dressed carcass show.

In the old days, Cross said, when lard was selling higher than the meat, the fat hog was the thing. Price of lard is now much below the price of meat, and judging was based on dressed percentage of hams, loins, shoulders and bacon. This ranged from 12 1/2 percent of fat in top hogs to 22 percent in the lowest hogs.

Judging of carcasses was done by Harry Lindgren and A. Oltver of the state college livestock division. Tests for fat content were run by Cross at the packing plant.

Buyers, said Cross, could pay more for hogs if growers would breed for longer animals with heavier bacon and ham content.

Winners in the contest were B. Miller, Gervais, on his Berkshire hog Oregon State college, on the Ham Race display, a cross of the Danish Land Race and the Hampshire hog, which the packing plant men believe has a fine future; Wendell Willard, Dayton, Poland China; R. J. Miller, Gervais, Berkshire, and Don Gardner, Canyon, Poland China.

The 20 hogs shown at the fairgrounds last Thursday had all been dressed by the packing plant and were on display Tuesday. Approximately 50 people viewed the show.

report said, guided missiles "will be no more dangerous than commercial airplanes flying overhead and from a nuisance standpoint they will be less objectionable."

ONE OF TODAY'S BIGGEST BARGAINS

How your telephone gives you more real value today in spite of sharply-increased costs of furnishing service

2. If you could see how much expensive equipment goes to work for you each time you make a call, you might wonder how it can be done . . . for just a few dollars a month. Lines, cables, poles, buildings, intricate equipment — all must be ready . . . along with the people who man them . . . to serve you when you pick up your telephone.

4. There is no way to determine the full value of a telephone, of course. A single call may be just routine — or it may save a life, make a new friend, close a business deal. Yet a few pennies still buy a telephone call. In these days of high prices, it's good to know that your telephone keeps right on giving you real value for your money — it's one of today's biggest bargains

3. More "Voices with a Smile" are serving the West today . . . our payroll is the biggest ever. Postwar costs have shot up all along the line on the things we do to provide service. The facilities to serve new telephones today cost about twice as much as prewar. Yet telephone rates are up much less than almost anything we buy or you buy.
