GRIN AND BEAR IT By Lichty

"I was neglected, ignored and forsaken!... all my husband seemed to think about was trying to make a living..."

Your Health

Written by
Dr. Herman N.
Bunderson, M.D.

There is a disorder which affects the nervous system of older people. It is called paralysis agitans or Parkinson's disease. Just why this condition develops is not known. A form of this disease may follow encephalitis, or brain inflammation.

The symptoms consist of paralysis; the patient develops a peculiar shuffling gait and there is a tremor or shaking of the hands or fingers. The speech becomes thick and incoherent, and a "cog-wheel" rigidity of the muscles develops. Thus far, no cure for this condition has been found. Certain operations have been performed, but these have a limited usefulness.

Drug treatment has consisted of preparations such as hyoscine, belladonna, and stramonium, either alone or in combinations. Amphetamine, which has a stimulating effect on the nervous tissue, has also been tried and found beneficial in a few cases.

Of course, treatment of this type must be carried out only under the direction of a physician who will advise who much should be used, how the drug must be administered and under what conditions it is given.

Hollywood On Parade

HOLLYWOOD — Barbara Bel Geddes is a 36-year-old blonde who can twist her nose to one side and admit she is no great beauty. She is also a very attractive actress who, after four movies, doesn't know just what she wants next.

The firm-chinned new star, whose face reminds her of the fat-cheeked god of wind you see on maps, feels restless. "I want to bust out and do something different. Go to Europe and see how other people live. Or get in my car and go across the United States—something I've never done."

Professionally—"I'd love to play a real bawdy, loud, uninhibited, screaming witch. That I could handle with great finesse. Or a girl clown in a circus—there was one in Germany, you know—with a white face and big feet. Or a musical—a serious one, a play with music added." Her sinning voice is "good and loud," she dances "feebly." Does she yearn for figure-revealing costumes? "No, you bum."

Barbara, once a shy, now a talkative interviewee, has pretty well avoided being typed. In "The Long Night" she was naive and supposedly 18. In "I Remember Mama," she was 14-year-old Katrin, in black stockings and no make-up. "Blood on the Moon" presented her as a cowgirl in pants. In "Caught!" she's a big-city girl oppressed by Robert Ryan, rescued by James Mason.

Barbara's set on one thing: "I don't want to play a clothes horse. I want to play characters rather than ingenues." Yet she admits she may be erring by picking and choosing. Maybe she should be seen more on the screen. It's
