

Salvation Held Possible Outside Church in New Catholic Book

WASHINGTON, April 21—(AP)—The Roman Catholic church of the United States today issued a new catechism which backs up Archbishop Richard J. Cushing's stand in the Boston "heresy" dispute. It says that persons "outside the church" can attain salvation under certain conditions. The new religious textbook, however, does not deal with the Boston dispute as such. In preparation for years, it is designed, church officials said, to give a "rather complete presentation of the doctrine of the church" on a broad field of subjects such as war, government, labor-management relations as well as purely religious matters.

Publication of the 426-page book climaxes 12 years of research by a group of prelates and Catholic scholars known as the confraternity of Christian doctrine. The catechism is for secondary schools and colleges. The new catechism says persons "who remain outside the Catholic church through no grave fault of their own and do not know it is the true church, can be saved by making use of the graces which God gives them." It added, however, that persons who do know that the "Catholic church is the true church and refuse to join it cannot be saved."

Eyerly Hurt During Horse Show Practice

Lee U. Eyerly, captain of the Oregon mounted posse, was injured in the left arm and shoulder Thursday night when he was over-run by the posse in a practice drill at the state fairgrounds pavilion. His injuries were not serious. He was rushed to Salem Memorial hospital by the city first aid car, and was taken home after examination.

The accident occurred when Eyerly's horse, Honey Boy, slipped as he was leading the posse in a fast maneuver. Eyerly fell to the ground in front of the posse's charge. None of the horses was injured. The drill was a rehearsal for the annual horse show here May 7-8.

The blaze broke out from an undetermined cause just before 7 a. m. and roared through the plant as oil drums exploded.
