SECRETS OF CHARM

By JOHN ROBERT POWERS

Smart women know that well-chosen accessories can turn an indifferent frock into a dynamic costume!

Watch any woman that all eyes follow admiringly when she enters the scene and ninety-nine times out of a hundred it will be a woman who uses accessories with the eye of an artist. Smart women know that well-chosen accessories can turn an indifferent little frock into a dynamic costume. And if you wish to be a decorative asset to any room you enter, inexpensive accessories will win you flattering acclaim that cannot be matched by the costliest of a few seasons' back.

First Match Yourself

To put accessories to work for you to win your plaudits, there's one fundamental rule: Make sure that they match your personality! If you are the demure, innocent type, don't ever be tempted to choose the sophisticated ones. But if you're a wise-looking modern, your accessories can be the most worldly-looking the fashion marts have to offer.

You'll be glad to know that the accessory picture for the coming summer is a handsome one. Handbags, shoes, gloves, scarves and veils are beautiful in color, design and workmanship. You'll be able to give your clothes that flare that well-chosen accessories so strikingly provide.

There is one infallible signpost that points to the wise and clever way of selecting accessories. It's marked with these words, "three of a kind." It means that you can wear three accessories in the same color with a good effect. That it is dull and dangerous to wear more than three accessories.

In the same color is certain. Even three can be a crowd when the color is bright.

For example, you might be greatly tempted by the new, pepper red shades in accessories to wear with your sheer navy dress this summer. You've a good idea but don't let it get the best of you. A red hat, scarf, belt, gloves bag and shoes would be fatal. Such a selection would cause the tail to wag the dog.

Breaking It Up

Instead, choose navy for your hat and shoes. Take your red accent out in your bag, belt and scarf or a pony. Your gloves can then be navy or white as the occasion demands. There are limitless combinations, of course. Red shoes and purse would be fine if the rest of your costume is restricted to navy.

There's a lot of fashion talk about the monochromatic look—that's wearing one subtle color such as gray or beige throughout. Because these colors are subdued, this looks very well. It would call out the fire department if carried out in red. In any case, it takes great style and sophistication to get away with it. That's why I say, "Three of a kind's enough."

'The Red Shoes' Delights at Preview; Due at State Theatre

J. Arthur Rank's "The Red Shoes," based on Hans Christian Andersen's fairy tale and winner of three "Oscars," delighted a select audience at a pre-view at the State theatre Wednesday.

In full color, the roadshow presentation will be at the State from Sunday through Wednesday, with daily showings at 2:30 and 8:30 p.m. There also will be an extra showing Sunday at 5:30 p.m. All seats will be reserved.

The story is that of a young girl consumed with ambition to attend a dance in red shoes. She finally acquires the shoes and has a happy time at the dance—but when it is over the shoes refuse to stop dancing and take the girl out into the street, over mountains and valleys and forests, through night and day.

Maria Shearer, red-haired, blue-eyed ballerina, is outstanding.

"The Red Shoe" is the first picture ever to present a full-length ballet in its entirety. All exteriors were filmed in actual locales—London, Paris, Monte Carlo, Nice, Cannes and Maritime Alps. It was co-written, produced and directed by Michael Powell and Emeric Pressburger, makers of "Colonel Blimp," "Stairway to Heaven," "Black Narcissus" and other outstanding pictures.

The score includes excerpts from Prini's Danse Bohemian, Stravinski's Petrouchka, Tschai-kowsky's Swan Lake, Chopin's Les Sylphides, Rossini's Boutique Fantasque, Delibes' Coppelia, Glinka's Kamarinskaya and Adolph Adam's Giselle, all played by the Royal Philharmonic under Sir Thomas Beecham.

The cast includes Anton Walbrook (Boris Lermontov, impresario), veteran of the Viennese stage; Marius Goring (Julian Craster, composer), trained at the Old Vic theatre in London and wartime broadcaster of propaganda into Germany; Moira Shearer (Vicky Page), 22-year-old prima ballerina of the Covent Garden Opera; ballet, Leonide Massine (Grisha Ljubov, ballet coach and The Cobbler), world-known dancer and choreographer and member of famous troupes since 1915; Robert Helpmann (Ivan Boleslawsky, Vicky's dancing partner), star in "Henry V" and others; Albert Basserman (Sergei Ratov, scenic designer), 81, outstanding in Hollywood productions; Ludmilla Teberina (Irine Boronskaya, black-haired dancer), star of the Monte Carlo ballet, and Esmond Knight (orchestra conductor), partially blind, veteran who co-starred in "Black Narcissus," "Henry V" and "Silver Fleet."

"The Red Shoes" won the highest honors of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, for best production in color, best music score and best art direction.—F.B.
