2 Plans Studied For Jail Space In Courthouse

Two alternate plans for revision of jail quarters in the proposed new Marion county courthouse were being studied today by officials, after their receipt from the architect. He had been asked to make changes at the last meeting of the courthouse commission.

A plan which would leave the fifth floor as the uppermost but would be rearranged from earlier ideas was favored by Sheriff Denver Young. He called it more practical and workable than the alternative—a fifth floor jail and a sixth floor juvenile detention area. The revised five-floor design would add space for six more men, double women's cell area to 12, allow space for six girls and 16 boys. It would cut the cells for mental cases to one man's and one woman's.

The present jail is arranged to care for 32 men, six women and 10 juveniles.

If the courthouse went to six stories, both fifth and sixth would be smaller than those below. The juvenile area would include two sun-recreation areas, one for boys and one for girls.

A letter from Pietro Belluschi, the architect, said he had visited the Clark county Washington, courthouse, where quarters away from the courthouse had been provided for juveniles. There, he wrote, the architect had left 20 per cent vacant space for expansion, which was filled within five years. He expressed hope that the space requirements furnished by Marion county authorities had allowed for future expansion.

Cherry Fete Plans Spurred By Hot Spell

With local weather suggestive of festival times, civic leaders are expediting plans for the 1949 Salem Cherryland festival in June.

Herbert E. Barker's parade committee put letters of invitation in the mail this week to all civic and fraternal organizations, with registration blanks for the entry of floats in this year's festival parade.

Barker urged an early response so that plans may proceed for a parade he expects to excel even last year's. He called attention to the fact that any interested group may enter a float. Registration forms are available at Salem Chamber of Commerce, Salem Labor temple, Stevens & Son jewelry store and the festival headquarters at 248 N. Commercial st.

A verdict for the defendants, but no money judgment for either party was returned by a Marion county circuit court jury in the case of Charles E. Dozier vs Roy C. and Abbie C. Goss.

Dozier had sued for $605 damages following an alleged assault Sept. 6, 1948, and Abbie Goss had filed a counter-claim for $1,500 damages.

DA to Investigate Car Mileage Law

District Attorney E. O. Stadter, Jr. was requested by Marion county court Thursday to investigate the effects of a new legislative enactment as to mileage of employees using private cars on county business.

While the new county budget raises the payment from 5 to 6 cents per mile, the new law, from house bill 181, provides that fees should be 8 cents per mile in all cases where compensation of the officer is not fixed.

Verdict in Assault Case Includes No Damages

A verdict for the defendants, but no money judgment for either party was returned by a Marion county circuit court jury in the case of Charles E. Dozier vs Roy C. and Abbie C. Goss.

Dozier had sued for $605 damages following an alleged assault Sept. 6, 1948, and Abbie Goss had filed a counter-claim for $1,500 damages.

At Salem Schools

SALEM HIGH SCHOOL

Top Salem high band and orchestra students departed for Klamath Falls Thursday to compete in the state music contest. The students, comprising three bus loads, will participate in individual events this afternoon, with the band and orchestra to play tonight. They will return Saturday.

Over $1500 was contributed by various organizations, business men and individuals to make the trip possible. Several of the students entered in the contest received highest possible ratings in the district contest held recently. Both the band and orchestra were rated as "superior" in earlier contests.

E. Donald Jessup band director and instrumental instructor for Salem schools and Victor Palmason orchestra leader are accompanying the group.

Beneficial aspects of science were shown in a "Preview of Progress" at Salem High Thursday by two public relations representatives of General Motors corporation, Dean Smale and Al Hagman. Interest in individual scientific research was stimulated by the pair who demonstrated the advance of science in recent years.

Principles of jet propulsion were shown as well as transition of sound into light by electric impulses, the light then being beamed across the stage to a device which changed the light back to sound. Other demonstrations included a "cold" stove, replicas of Edison's first electric light and Edison's phonograph, and improvements in modern electric lights.

RICHMOND SCHOOL
First graders in Carmen Jenkinson's Richmond class played "cowboy" on the stage this week as the class presented a school program. A musical play "The as several western songs and Little Cowboy" was given as well musical numbers by the school rhythm band.
