in Stangard Gillia Contro Transing lane -The Statesman, Salem, Oregon, Thursday, June 9, 1949

The Oregon Statesman

"No Favor Sways Us, No Fear Shall Awe" From First Statesman, March 28, 1851

THE STATESMAN PUBLISHING COMPANY CHARLES A SPRAGUE, Editor and Publisher

Entered at the postoffice at Salem, Oregon, as second class matter under act of congress March 3, 1879. Published every morning. Business office 215 S. Commercial, Salem, Oregon. Telephone 2-2141.

Hotel for the Ghost Riders

If there were any ghost riders following the red-eyed cows across the ragged sky and up a cloudy draw over north-central Montana this week, as related in a popular song they probably stopped a-chasin' the devil's herd long enough to watch the historic Overland hotel in Fort Benton burning down . . .

The old hosteiry was a familiar landmark to the cowboys and, equally, to many pioneer settlers of Oregon who slept in their bedrolls on the dirt floors and warmed themselves over buffalo-chip fires in the first building erected in that Chouteau county seat. For Fort Benton was an important station in the long trek from eastern states to Oregon as well as the stamping grounds for Indians and traders.

Never a U. S. military encampment, Fort Benton was first a trading post of fur companies. An adobe fort for protection against the fierce Black Foot Indians was built there on the upper Missouri river in 1850 and named after Senator Thomas H. Benton of Missouri whom Benton county in Oregon also honors.

First settlers along the Missouri were halfbreed fur trappers and the Kentucky and Tennessee mountain men like Boone Caudill and Jim Deakins, so vividly described in "The Big Sky" by A. B. Guthrie, jr. For them Fort Benton (or Fort MacKenzie in "The Big Sky") was the backdoor to civilization; there they peddled their beaver skins and returned to their squaws, like Boone's Piegan Teal Eye, with provisions and whiskey.

Benton's primitive status was short-lived after a mountaineer showed up in 1857 with a buckskin sack of gold dust. Soon steamboats churned up 'the river from St. Louis, carrying prospectors and miners bound for the diggings and families bound for the Pacific Coast. From Fort Benton the pioneers went overland along the Mullan road, crossing the mountains near Helena, through the Missoula valley over the Bitter Root range into the Spokane country to Walla Walla with the Columbia river a few miles farther on.

Though thousands of easterners were fun-"nelled through the old post on their way west, Fort Benton held to its frontier ways until long after "Jim Hill's Road," the Great Northern railroad, brought the latest refinements from St. Paul and put the steamboats out of business. As late as 1882 visitors to Benton were warned to "walk in the middle of the street and mind your own business." It was a tough town as tough as the buffalo hunters and wolfers that preceded the equally ruthless organized cattle rustlers and horse thieves who made their headquarters in the Band Lands. It was the plants that mint the coinage; another wofrequently "shot up" by cowboys in for a carouse and sometimes the sidewalks were so lushly carpeted with discarded playing cards family custom - the wife handles all the that the wood planking was completely covered. So the old Overland did not really belong in today's modern Fort Benton, a marketplace for wool growers. Now it has gone up in amoke and maybe the cowpokes who didn't "change their ways" will sit around its ghostly tables with their faro and poker and talk about the days under the earthly sky when men like Boone Caudill led the way to the winning of the West, of the heavy traffic between the island and New York City. Impoverished Puerto Ricans have swarmed to the big city where they constitute a substantial chunk of population in the mid-city area. As American citizens they are free to enter the United States and reside here. Congested as their living quarters are in the big city they have a higher standard of living than on the island, eevn if they are on public relief. Much of the travel back and forth is by charter planes which offer lower fares.

The big city swallows up these immigrants, though the Spanish names identify their districts, and though their wote is coming to be reckoned with in city elections. It takes a calamity like this to acquaint the rest of the nation with this migration, with the ambition of our island brown brothers to share in the opportunities of mainland life. ----

Another Canol Project?

The army engineers according to announcement of Maj Gen. Lewis A. Pick, chief, is off on a new hunt for liquid fuel. This time it is looking for areas suitable for manufacture of synthetic liquid fuel, which means getting fuel from oil-bearing shales or coal or natural gas. A contract has been let to a firm of engineers for $1,341,000 to make the survey.

Why didn't the army engineers call up the bureau of mines or the geological survey in the department of the interior to get information on this subject. These divisions have made extensive studies of coal deposits, oil-bearing shales, gas fields. The bureau has set up a pilot plant in Colorado to try out the production of petroleum from the huge stocks of oil-bearing shale in that state.

In Pennsylvania an oil company and a coal company are testing a process of producing liquid fuel from coal,

In brief, this field is being fully explored now; so why should the army engineers be butting into it? One would think after squandering $130,000,000 on the Canol oil project in the northland during the war the army would keep away from the oil business. It hasn't though; and instead of depending on public and private agencies properly concerned with fuel supply it starts spending money on a survey for synthetic fuel for the next war which isn't in sight.

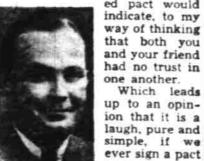

A woman, Mrs. Nellie Ross, former governor of Wyoming, is director of the mint. Now the president has nominated another woman, Mrs. Georgia Nesse Clark of Kansas to be treasurer of the United States. One woman runs

Henry Strikes A Sour Note; Treaties - Bah!

The deal with

By Henry McLemore

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., June 8-Private opionions made publie: I believe that "peace treaties" are the bunk, pure and simple. If nations are at peace, want peace, and are on the level, why in the world do their statesmen have to put the fact in writing? That's about the same as swearing under oath to a friend that you are his friend and will not do him dirt. Indeed, such a signed pact would simple, if we ever sign a pact with Russia, McLemore and then pat ourselves on the back for our smartness. I don't know much about history, but enough of it. I believe, to know that probably the easiest thing in the world is to break a treaty. There is always a loophole through which a dishonest nation can leap without touching its head. So before we sign anything in Paris, let us consider the price of ink and fountain pens, if nothing else. .

It's a good thing they didn't call me as a juror in the perjury case against Alger Hiss. I would have gone in plumb biased against the government's star witness, Whittaker Chambers, Any man who has admitted, as Chambers has, that he once sold out his country, could never convince me of anything. If a man will do that, my guess is that his word isn't worth the effort it takes to pronounce if. Hiss may be as guilty as Judas, but I surely wouldn't convict him on the say-so of a man who, at one time, chose the enemy against the country he belongs to. . .

Will Margaret O'Brien ever quit crying about her mother's marriage? The first two or three million gallons of a child movie star's tears are newsworthy, but after that they get as tiresome as the steady rain on a South Pacific island during the monsoon time. One more tear out of Margaret and I, like Prince Aly with the photographers, am going to cane her. Frankly, that's what I think she needs. Besides, with an

our income estimated at $3,000 per week, why should anyone cry? Shut up, Margaret' Not only that, dry up!

> I must go for a man named Hickenlooper. Never met the Senator from Iowa, and he may be all wrong in his charges against David Lilienthal. But with a name like that a man has to have class to rise above the laughs of his grammar school

> > Written by

Bundensen, M.D.

Dr. Herman N.

mates, much less reach the senate of the United States.

There are only two great jobs

are not satisfactory, it may be necessary to cut the skin and

by getting rid of any damaged

tissues and sewing up the cut.

Care must be taken not to put the stitches through the cartilage of the ears because infections may cause damage to the cartilage,

and deformity. It is advisable to give some substance, such as penicillin or the sulfonamide

drugs to keep these infections

It is also important to examine

BOTTLE BABY

If men in any other jobs were as wrong as often as the fellows who predict the weather and those who call the winners at the tracks, they'd be fired faster than

McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

1. What is wrong with this sentence? "She typewrote the letter for me."

2. What is the correct pronunviation of "illustrate" 3. Which one of these words is misspelled? Nineteen, evergreen, gangreen. 4. What does the word "profanation" mean?

Better English

By D. C. Williams

Remember - FATHER'S DAY is June 19th

At The Man's Shop

YOU'LL HAVE

TO PROVE IT!

Board to Receive Bids On Woodburn Project

Bids for two building projects at the state training school for boys at Woodburn will be received by the state board of control until June 17.

The projects consist of construction of a five room residence for the superintendent and building of an addition to the employes dining room.

with as that means "constant in application"

ANSWERS 1. Say, "She typed the letter." 2 Accent on second syllable is preferred. 3. Gangrene. 4. Act of profaning; especially sacred things. "The profanation of the 5. What is a word beginning name of God." 5. Assiduous.

a machine gun can be fired. Some types of banana must be cooked before they can be eaten. The Babylonians developed banks as early as 2,000 B.C. NUMBER OF A DESCRIPTION OF

Oregon Payroll In '48 Highest In State History

Oregon's total payroll in 1948 was the largest in the state's history-$962,749,620.

Figures released Tuesday by the state unemployment commission reveal, besides the overall gain for the state, that every county except Multnomah established a new payroll record during the year.

Multnomah's payroll was larger than in 1947 but below the record vear 1944.

Marion county's payroll was $40,449,626, compared to $36,630,-469 in 1947, an increase of 10.4 per cent. The Marion county payroll ranked third in the state behind Multnomah and Lane counties.

Figures released pertain to all workers covered by the state unemployment commission.

Capital Electric Open House Set

Grand opening in its new place of business is set for Friday and Saturday by Capital Electric, now at 1480 Fairgrounds rd., according to Mr. and Mrs. Lowell W. Hann, owners,

The enlarged store, housed in a building erected especially for it, will be open until 9 p.m. on those days. Special features, will include gifts for women visitors, refreshments from 2 to 5 p.m. and display of equipment.

The firm specializes in refrigeration sales and service, but also handles other electric appliances and repairs. Hann has been with Capital Electric since 1941 and the owner for the past three years,

Mainland Opportunities

Another transport plane in charter service between Puerto Rico and the New York district erashed with heavy loss of life. Fifty-four persons perished when the plane dived into the pea.

The significance of the news story is not just in the loss of life but in the revelation of catching up with Salem and ahead of Eugene.

man will have her named signed on all the currency. The US is merely catching up with money.

The Salem postoffice will celebrate its centennial on Nov. 8th this year, and Postmaster Gragg has received a special stamping die to use on outgoing mail in the fall of the year. The first postoffice was at the northeast corner of Commercial and Ferry streets, diagonally across from the Statesman building. While the center of town has moved northerly it hasn't gone very far in a hundred years. We're slow-moving here.

Our entry for the next Burlington, Vt., liar's contest is Whittaker Chambers - not for quality but quantity.

Corvallis will go on daylight saving time-

Another fact is obvious on the face of it. Let the peasants sweat till they drop, China cannot even be strated on the way toward an urban industrial economy

without very extensive trade with substitute for western trade.

which built Shanghai from a mud

flat to the fourth greatest city

. . .

pendering. Only the Chinese communists can now provide

what the western nations desperately want - a China independent of the Kremlin. But only the western nations can provide

what the Chinese communists desperately want - the where-withall, from machine tools and capital to technical skills, to in-dustrialize their country. In considering western policy toward communist China, it is worth bearing this fact in mind. For to munist leaders know it.

food.

the west. Russia can supply no other accidents, proper treatment drain the fluid may do much to ward off per-Cuts and wounds of the ears manent damage and to prevent also may occur. These should be future complications. One of the most common eftreated, as are any other wounds,

Accidents to the ears occur

rather frequently and here, as in fects of injury to the ear is bleeding into the external ear, with the formation of a blood clot in the tissues. When this occurs, there is a smooth, tender swelling which obliterates the normal outline of the ear. The skin over the swelling becomes darker in color and there may be some throbbing and discomfort. This condition does not cause any disability, but, if not treated, the ear becomes thick and unsightly. This is commonly known as a cauliflower ear.

. . . It is suggested that, if the material under the skin is fluid, it may be withdrawn by using a syringe and needle. Unfortunately, the fluid reforms and, to bring about a cure, it must be sucked out daily for a week or more. Putting pressure on the tissues with a dressing after the fluid is withdrawn may keep the

the external ear canal to make sure that no wound is present which is neglected, 'since, if untreated, scar tissues may form in healing which may block the ear canal. Should such scar tissue develop, which seems to be blocking the opening, the tissues may be stretched or a plastic operation carried out. QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS from developing.

S. Z .: I get a sort of an itch all nuses, or a chronic infection of the appendix may be a contributing cause of itching skin. Red spots occur as a result of the irritation from the scratching. You should have a careful examination made so that if any infections are present they may be discovered and cleared up.

Thousands of Air Corps fliers used them during the war!

SURPLUS SALE OF SUN GLASSES

Polished optical lens! Gold-plated frames!

This is exactly the same kind of glasses our army fliers wore - - made to the same rigid specifications, made of the same top-grade materials: gold-plated frames with mother-of-pearl brow rest and nose clips, colored ground and polished optical lenses. These are the same glasses we sold at a fast clip last summer for $3.95. Now a special purchase sends the price down to $2.98! These glasses are practically indestructible - - and they come in their own protecting case.

Age-Old Problems Still Plaguing China 50 per cent after the communists to industrialize China as Rus-By Stewart Alson HONG KONG, June 8 - Even took over. There are other resia was industrialized - by the ports of the same pattern being blood and sweat of the peasants.

the of that value.

banknote" was officially pegged at eighty to the dollar. It has slithered down to hardly a ten-currency is reported to have depreciated by half in a single day

. . .

cause honest officials starve. The communists' chieftains are believed wholly incorruptible. But corruption is already attacking

the lower reaches of the new officialdom. According to one reliable firsthand witness, for example, "You can buy your way through Tientsin-right now, if

All this does not mean that communist China is faced with imminent economic collapse, nor that inflation and corruption have even begun to reach the full and hideous flower they attained in nationalist China. Yet an ancient process has started, and for precisely the same reasons that it has always started in China; too many people, too little food.

you've got the money '

Inflation begets corruption, be-

In Shanghai the' communist at ten thousand feet you serise ft - too many people, too little repeated elsewhere. food. Most countries look almost Not enough food and not enough uninhabited from the air. But industrial production spells in-China, with its flation. In Peiping the "peoples' scratched and scrabbled land, its scarred mountains, its endless jumble of mud villages, Its brick red rivers carrying precious topsoil to the sea, looks like some vast hungry antheap The commun- Stewart Along lsts are inheriting the antheap." Now they are faced with the ancient, unanswered question which has faced all China's rulers: How are the ants to be fed?

This is the central fact. China's ageless ills have not suddenly disappeared with the substitution of one political power for another. When the communists took over the big cities, they also took over China's deficit economy, and they are beginning to suffer the consequences.

Now, for the first time, they are having trouble with the peasents. The reports of peasants resistance to food collections come from so many sources that' they must be based on fact. The reason is obvious - the peasants are no being forced to share their production with the hungry popto share the food, and partly because they lack skilled technicians, the communists are also having trouble with their newly won urban industries.

A European recently returned from the Great Kailan coal mines in the north told this reporter

The central committee of the Chinese communist party has now announced how the party means to attack China's economic disease - by what amounts to a slavish imitation of Russia's five year plans. The whole political and economic emphasis :s ulations of the great cities. Part-, to be shifted from the peasants ly because of peasant reluctance to the big city industrial workers This program has horrified China's pro-communist intellectuals, who like many American intellectuals have fondly imagined that the Chinese communists were kindly agrarian reformers.

the policy of that nation. For it is obvious on 'the face (Copyright, 1949, New York Herald Tribune Inc.) that production fell off almost of it that the communists plan have what another nation wants is to be capable of influencing "No question about prices dropping . . . I offered only $10,000 toward a new gym and without further shopping around they granted me an honorary degree."

one made up of a pad of cotton, which is firmly bandaged against the side of the head. This is replaced after three days, at which time the fluid which has accumulated within the tissues is withdrawn. If these methods of treatment

6.9

and 1968, Sure and Times St.