Honey Reminders, Good to Sweeten, Flavor Foods; Makes Salad Dressing

By Maxine Baren
Statesman Women's Editor

Since the war has been over, and sugar is a regular item in the cupboard, we may forget it as a flavorful sweetener that gives interesting variety to foods.

Most honey found on the market is blended, and constantly similar in flavor with only a mildly different taste in varying localities. Most of the honey bought in the stores is light in color—usually mild in flavor.

Many local buyers however, purchase honey from growers whose roadside stands may offer the product made by bees who dine on a certain flower in a particular locality.

Food specialists of the department of agriculture suggest a number of ways to use honey advantageously during the summer months. Here are some ideas:

Honey is good as a sweetener for punch, ice tea and even, I'm told, of coffee if one likes sweetened iced coffee.

A fruit cup sweetened with honey makes a fine meal beginner. If the fruit is mild in flavor, add some lemon juice for tartness.

A honey dressing for fruit salads is popular. Here's our old favorite:

HONEY FRUIT DRESSING

- 2/3 cup sugar
 - 1/2 cup honey
 - 1 teaspoon dry mustard
 - 1 teaspoon paprika
 - 3/4 teaspoon salt
 - 1 teaspoon celery seed
 - 5 tablespoons vinegar
 - 1 tablespoon lemon juice
 - 1 teaspoon grated onion
 - 1 cup oil
- Garlic if desired
- Mix drys, add all other ingredients, beating while adding oil. Makes 2 cups dressing.

A fruit salad with more honey flavor is made by dipping orange segments in honey then in coconut and arranging on lettuce leaves. Berries or cherries as a topping make the salad attractive.

Honey becomes a sweetener for sweet-sour sauce on vegetables such as beets or cabbage.

Honey has long been a favorite sweetener for candied sweet potatoes, and it glazes carrots nicely too.

Honey glazes ham, it combines

A. Yes, always; and also when extending a courtesy.

peanut butter or chopped dried fruits and nuts for sandwich fillings and becomes an ice cream sauce when poured over the frozen dessert and topped with nuts.

If using honey in breads, cakes or cookies, it's recommended that a regular recipe be used, as the honey acts differently than sugar or corn syrups.

WHERE THE SPIRIT OF SERVICE BEGINS

One Coast-wide school system is for telephone people only—and better service for the West is the result

2. On stubby poles like these, linemen learn to use their new climbing equipment. This is just one of the more than one hundred courses that telephone people study up and down the Coast. In 1948, thousands of employees received training. That means thousands better able to furnish good service to you.

1. As this young lady learns to use a training switchboard, she'll also learn many things that will be mighty important to good service. All through her training she'll see how operators make courtesy and helpfulness a normal part of their jobs. And the same spirit is present as other telephone people learn their new skills.

3. On-the-job-training is typified by this "student" who is learning the workings of a trouble indicator frame—an automatic detective that makes sure the lines on its "beat" are giving good service. Even experienced employees take refresher courses like this to keep up-to-date... and keep learning their way up the ladder.

4. Good service for you comes from telephone people who know their jobs. You can help them serve you best by making sure you always have the right number in mind before calling, leaving a little time between calls, giving the called person time to answer.
