Board of Control to Discuss Portland Office Building Sites

Discussion of sites for the proposed $2,500,000 state office building in Portland was expected to highlight Tuesday's meeting of the state board of control here. Members of the board last week inspected several of the sites.

State Treasurer Walter E. Pearson, a board member, said he is anxious to purchase a site and begin construction operations. Other board members, Governor Douglas McKay and Secretary of State Earl T. Newberry also apparently are agreeable to such a program.

Principal interest in the selection of a site centers on whether it will be located in west Portland or east Portland. The Portland city planning commission wants the building on the west side of the river while the east side commercial club would locate it east of the river. Both groups have appeared before the board of control on several occasions.

Roy Mills, board secretary, said the selection of a site apparently has narrowed to five or six properties but he would not divulge where they are located. Board members agreed that the cost of a site would enter prominently into the selection. Officials said at least two years would be required to prepare the plans, advertise and

Demonstration By Union Held T-H Violation

WASHINGTON, July 4—(AP)—The national labor relations board has ruled unanimously that a public demonstration to support a strike is a violation of the Taft-Hartley labor law if it causes "physical obstruction" of plant entrances.

The ruling was made on an anti-Taft-Hartley demonstration at the Chicago plant of the Cory Corp., makers of home and restaurant appliances.

The board said the demonstration on Nov. 21, 1947, was sponsored by the CIO United Electric Radio and Machine workers, the striking union between 1,500 and 2,000 persons marched in front of the plant for almost an hour until dispersed by police.

Union officials insisted it was intended primarily to protest against the labor law. But the board held that it also involved support of the Cory strike and blocked the employees' entrance at a time when workers normally reported. It ruled this a law violation and an unfair labor practice.

Chiggers usually are not found in hardwood groves, and thus oaks or elms are better spots for picnic grounds to avoid these insects.

21 Salem Boys Return from 'Beaver State'

Twenty-one Salem boys returned over the week end from the American Legion's annual Beaver Boys state at Corvallis. The boys ages 15 to 17 were sponsored by posts 9 and 126, both of Salem, and post 81 of West Salem. They set up a model government in Waldo Hall on the Oregon State college campus where they studied American politics from its beginnings to the present day.

Richard Meyer, 944 Belmont st., who attended the week-long conference under sponsorship of post 9 said Monday, "It was an exciting, educational experience and I'm sure all the boys returned better citizens than when they left for the meeting."

Inauguration Highlight

Meyer said the convention's highlight was inauguration of the boy governor, Ralph Thayer of Portland, Wednesday night in ceremonies broadcast by radio station KOAC in Corvallis. Gov. Douglas McKay and B. E. Owens, state American Legion commander, spoke at the program.

Each of three floors in of Waldo hall where the boys lived was designated as a county, with four cities in each county.

City, county and state officers then were elected to serve during the week.

Calisthenic Program

The boys rose at 6:15 every morning to face an army-directed calisthenics and inspection before breakfast. Meyer said. Classes with movies and lectures on government filled the morning and early afternoon hours. Softball and volleyball games were held later each afternoon along with target practice directed by army sergeants.

In the evenings caucuses and elections for the two boys state parties, federalist and nationalst, were held. Taps sounded at 10 p.

Attending boys state from Salem were Thomas Paulus and Allan Pearl, sponsored by post 136 and Lester Miller, Carlton Brown, William Jaquith, Richard John, William Schwartz and Harold Lang, sponsored by post 81.

Young GOP Convention Report Shows Oregon Delegates Active

Oregon's delegation to the recent Young Republicans national convention was the "hottest" delegation to one of the most lively GOP conventions in recent years, according to an official report made this week by returning delegates.

The Oregon delegation either engineered or set off these fire-works.

Robert Elliott, in a flaming speech, lambasted the "fixing and rigging" attempted by persons over the Young GOP age limit. He called upon delegates to express their own views rather than to "just sit and listen to the views of repeated 'Old Guard' speakers."

Russell Tripp, Willamette student body president, presented a resolution which forbids the holding of future conventions at "buildings or hotels where all members will not receive equal treatment regardless of race, color or creed."

Previous to that resolution the convention's national executive board, sparked by the Oregon delegation, had secured a reversal of the convention hotel's stand. The hotel had a policy refusing colored delegates certain privileges of the building.

In other convention battles Oregon delegates fought and argued for passage or non-passage of resolutions adopted by the convention.

These included Steve Anderson of Salem, who argued against the proposal to do away with federal withholding taxes; a defense of the world trade resolution submitted, and presentation and passage of a resolution creating a new financial program for the national organization.

Anderson was elected to the national executive board to represent the Pacific northwest states. Marion Putnam, Salem high school student, was the youngest delegate at the convention.

William Merriam, another Willamette university student, was active in the group of college students which sought adoption of a new college program for the organization.

Among the resolutions adopted at the convention were those urging the formation of a republican congressional policy committee "to establish a consistent republican policy," enactment of republican-sponsored civil rights, and social welfare legislation, retention of the Taft-Hartley labor act and approval of parity price supports for farm goods.

On the international front the young republicans favor limitation of the veto in the United Nations assembly to questions involving the use of force and creation of an international police force.

Wagner's Son Eyes Vacant Senate Post

WASHINGTON, July 4—(AP)—Robert F. Wagner, jr., of New York, has indicated a willingness to succeed his father in the senate.

The elder Wagner, a member of the senate for 22 and one-half years, resigned last month for reasons of health.

Young Wagner, in a prepared radio interview, discounted all rumors that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, the 1948 and 1944 republican presidential candidate, would appoint him to his father's former seat until a special election is held this fall.

"The republican party would chew him (Dewey) to pieces if he did that Wagner said. He added he doubted Dewey "ever had the
