The makin' of mixed pickle or "garden ends" is widely varied, but get a good recipe and the best ingredients and let imagination make the variety. Above are pictured some of the necessities and some of the extras for pickle making.

Pickle Pointers

New Pickling Ingredients May Make Adjustment of Recipes Necessary

By Maxine Buren
Statesman Woman's Editor

Checking with my own cucumber crop and double checking in the Statesman want-ads under "produce", we'd say that pickling time is crowding us.

Ofttimes a recipe of many generations use, takes a turn and fails to come out properly. It may be in the content of the vinegar. One is pretty well at the mercy of the merchant when it comes to vinegar, we just have to take his word that the vinegar is good, unless we buy it in bottles which displays the acid content on the label.

Because some vinegar is stronger than it was in grandmother's day, the modern pickle maker may have to add some water. Taste is about the only test in this case. Grandmother used a copper kettle to make her pickles greener, but unless the copper is bright and shiny there may be complications because the tarnish reacting with the acid may form poisonous salts. Pure granulated salt sold in sacks is better for pickles than those containing chemicals, to make them free-running.

Tying spices in bags helps keep color in some of the pickling processes.

Glass lids with top seal rubber rings or older type lightning jars with glass lids and rubber rings are better than zinc or other metal lids which have self sealing compounds.

Too much salt on dill pickles causes them to shrivel, too little makes them spoil. One pound salt to 10 quarts water and 1/2 quart vinegar is a standard one brine. The old fashioned way is to use a brine made of enough salt added to water to float an egg.

When pickling in a crock, be sure that the scum is removed frequently or the pickles will spoil. Here is a mixed pickle recipe which, though not our own, comes from a good source — in fact the company which manufactures not only many pickles, but also sells vinegars and spices to make the pickles at home.

- Tangy Vegetable Relish
- 3 medium carrots
 - 3 pounds cabbage
 - 6 green peppers
 - 6 sweet red peppers
 - 1 pound (6 medium) onions
 - 2 tablespoons salt
 - 2 tablespoons dehydrated horse radish
 - 6 cups distilled white vinegar
 - 2 cups sugar
 - 1 1/2 tablespoons celery seed
 - 2 tablespoons yellow mustard seed

Clean all vegetables thoroughly. Put the vegetables through the coarse grind of a food chopper. Place in colander. Pour boiling water over vegetables. Drain. Combine remaining ingredients. Heat to boiling, covered. Add vegetables. Boil gently for 2 minutes. Quickly pack one hot, sterilized jar at a time. Fill to 1/2" from top. Be sure vinegar solution covers the vegetables. Seal each jar at once. Yield: 7 pints.

Miss Fough to Be Married

AUMSVILLE — Miss Arta Lyn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Fough of Aumsville, will be married to Lee Glidewell, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Glidewell of Aumsville, at the Stayton Baptist church Saturday, August 27, at 8 p.m.

The Rev. Willard Buckner will perform the double ring ceremony. Attendants will be John Gant and Virginia Bloom of Eugene; Eva Coats of Timbes and Helen Tibbets of Salem. Ralph Glidewell and Al Gant will be ushers.

A reception will follow in the church basement. Both the bride and groom-elect are Aumsville high school graduates. Glidewell spent three years in the navy and has been attending Oregon State

Salem Folk See Shakespeare

Ten Salem residents have been among the audiences which have watched the opening performance of the Oregon Shakespearean Festival which is now underway at Ashland.

Sitting under the stars watching Shakespeare's plays being presented on an authentic Elizabethan stage have been Governor and Mrs. Douglas McKay, Secretary of State and Mrs. Earl Newberry, Assistant Secretary of the State and Mrs. William Healy, Mrs. D. J. Bolter, Miss Katherine M. Rahl, Miss Eleanor Stephens, and Miss Elise Schroeder.

The repertory this season includes "Romeo and Juliet," "Richard II," "Midsummer Night's Dream," "Othello," and "The Taming of the Shrew." The festival will continue through August 24.

Shower Given Young Matron

Mrs. James P. Lies and Mrs. E. L. Gray, jr. were hostesses at the latter's home on Wednesday night at a shower for Mrs. Wilbur Tripp. The house was decorated with gladioluses, and the group spent the evening informally.

Those honoring Mrs. Tripp were: Mesdames Morris Stewart, John R. Hunt, Wayne Ferris, Floyd McNeil, Maynard Nelson, Hubert Harris, T. N. Morris, W. C. Cross, John F. VanOsdol, John M. Meier, Warren Ewert, Bill Fritz, Norman Lind, Charles E. Prince and Elmer S. Meade.

Mrs. Madolyn Bier and daughter, Shirley are leaving today to spend their vacation with Mr. and Mrs. Hans Furseith of Hoquiam. Together they will go to Lake Quinalt, British Columbia.

Fortune in Your Attic

By Vivian Brown
AP Newsfeature Writer

Your house may hold a hidden fortune.

Morgan Towne, author of "Treasures in Truck and Trash," (Doubleday) says the junk in the cellar or attic of an old house, may be worth a mint.

Such unimpressive items as old bottles, a Farmer's Almanac, and even an old immigrants' guide have brought fancy prices.

In his book, Towne (who writes an introduction under his own name — Carl Drepper) gives several examples of people who found wealth in unsuspected ways.

There was the couple who found in a furnace one letter that had escaped being burned with a bundle of others the previous winter. It proved to be worth $15,000 to the new owners of the house. Rough estimates by experts were that the big fire of other letters had lost the previous owners of the house about $100,000. What they burned up were century-old letters from the Sandwich Islands with some of the earliest postage stamps of the Hawaiian Islands.

In an attic in Pennsylvania a thick roll of paper proved to be 76 copies of Moore's famous poem, "A Visit from St. Nicholas." Within three years copies were selling for $50 a piece.

A chest of receipts bills dated from 1790 to 1850 brought as much as $10 a piece.

A pamphlet folded to block up the leg of an old bureau was one of Edgar Allan Poe's works, of fabulous value.

Dime novels have sold for $5 to $25, and more.

Towne's book tells how to identify many of these old things, what they are worth and how to go about disposing of them.

Science books including books on chemistry, metallurgy, dynamics, optics, clockmaking or electricity might be worth 25 or 50 times their original value.

Any first edition of any author, Indian material printed before 1701, religious books before 1700, songbooks of the 17th century and almanacs printed before 1800 may be immensely valuable. Books on cookery and domestic economy before 1880 and crime pamphlets printed in Utah, San Francisco and other Western points prior to 1860 also bring fancy prices.

Among Towne's list of items which might be considered trash, but could have real value are: books on trades and crafts; teacher's manuals and schoolbooks; American History, old magazines (U.S. Military Magazine, Huddy and Duval, Phila., from 1839 to 1842, worth $1,000) newspapers, broadsides, posters, handbills, playing cards, Valentines (some bring $100), programs, mail order catalogues, glassware, prints, china, pottery, silver and plated wares, pewter, stoves, stencils and even buttons.

On Etiquette

By Roberta Lee

Q. Is it correct, when offering to help anyone, to say, "Permit me to assist you?"

A. Yes, this is all right, but it does sound somewhat stilted and formal. It would be better merely to say, "Let me help you."

Q. If one has no flowers, is it all right to have a fruit centerpiece on the dinner table?

A. Yes, the result will be attractive if a proper bowl is heaped with oranges, apples, peaches, pears, and grapes.

Q. Should one stay only a short time when making a call of condolence?

A. Yes; this call should be especially brief.

Miss Lukins Will Wed Mr. Steeves
