The Oregon Statesman, Salem, Oregon, Sunday, August 28, 1949

Entraining September 8 for Virginia and Indiana will be Sally and Margie E. Smith. Sally will enter her junior year at Radolph-Macon Woman's college at Lynchburg, Virginia, having taken her first two years at Willamette university. Margie will enroll at DePauw university at Greencastle, Indiana, for her freshman year.

Prospective coeds enjoying a farewell reunion before leaving for college are Sharon Hamilton, who entrains September 9 for Stephens college at Columbus, Mo.; Jamie Percy, who enters Mills college this fall, leaving in mid-September; and Katie Siegmund, who will be a freshman at the University of Oregon.

Soon to stroll the walks on the Oregon State college campus will be Diane Perry and Dorothy McCall, who will register for their freshmen year. (All photos by Jestin-Miller studio.)

College Bound

Talking over college days and rushing, pictured above, which are just around the corner for this group, are left to right, Joanne Hendrie, Audrey Simmons, Lorraine Welling and Barbara Spagle, who will register as freshmen at Oregon State college, and Margy Acton, who will enter Washington State college this fall. Beverly Beakey and Jean Clement, future Oregon State coeds, in the circle at right, got together one afternoon to compare campus styles in one of the fashion magazines.

To Leave for Portland . . .

Miss Julia Johnson, who has been in Salem the past month visiting with her mother, Mrs. Leona Johnson, is leaving Monday for Portland, where she will take over her new position as coordinator for the guidance and personnel program on the Lewis and Clark college campus. Miss Johnson will have living quarters on the campus. She returned this summer from a ten year stay in Chicago, where she has been with the Federal Reserve bank.

Vacation at the Beach . . .

Mrs. Sephus W. Starr and daughters, Mary Lou and Ann, and the former's mother, Mrs. Edith Norman, are leaving today for a week's sojourn at the Canyon Drive apartments on the coast. Also leaving today for the coast and a week's stay at the Canyon Drive are Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Simmons and son, Douglas.

Their First College Days . . .

Exciting days are ahead for dozens of Salem girls this fall, who will register as freshmen at schools in Oregon, Washington, California and some are going east for college. Pictured on our page today are just a few of the prospective coeds leaving in the next few weeks for school. There are many firsts for freshmen such as rushing, those hectic hours of choosing which house to pledge, living in dormitories or sorority houses with newly acquainted girls for the first time, taking that first stroll around the campus, meeting the professors and attending classes, much larger than high school classes, attending that first "big game," fraternity dances and the experience of coming home for the holidays, which all freshmen coeds look forward to.

While drinking cokes and discussing their prospective schools the photographer snapped Joan Barnes, who will enter Lewis and Clark college; Sally Donkin, who will register for her freshman year at Central Stanford university; and Suzanne Barnes, who will enroll at Oregon State next month.

Three future University of Oregon coeds looking over their cashmeres (which are a must in any college girl's wardrobe) before packing them are Ann Carson, Alice Louise Ohling and Shirley Karsten.
