

Hoist Helps in Handling Invalid

A hoist for handling invalids has been invented by Forrest D. Smith of the Valley Foundry, Salem, and is being manufactured and sold by Salem Equipment Co. It has a portable stretcher and wheel chair working in combination. A patient can be removed from the bed by the stretcher feature and placed on the wheel chair unit by the attendant. The hoist is operated by a foot pedal supplying hydraulic fluid. Operation of the invention will be shown in motion pictures at the state fair show, "What's New on the View," directed by J. T. Anderson, coordinator of inventors, who made the patent office drawings for the new device. The hoist will also be exhibited.

Ringling Bros. Circus Due In Salem Sept. 15

A streamlined, 88-foot railroad car came to a halt on the Southern Pacific sidings Tuesday. On its silver sides were circus pictures. Riding within was the No. 1 advertising crew of the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey circus, which will exhibit twice in Salem, Thursday, September 14 at the state fairgrounds parking lot, 18th street entrance.

The car was here to exploit the copyrighted title, "The Greatest Show on Earth."

The circus contracting press agent, Gardner Wilson, said the big show is about 50 per cent new in this, its 79th year. The big feature, he declared, is "Birthdays," in which nearly 2,000 people and animals move in fantasy to celebrate the natal days of the beloved characters in "Mother Goose and nursery rhymes."

Wilson also cited three other spectacles — "San Francisco," an equestrian "40ers' centennial jubilee," "The Girl in the Moon," an aerial extravaganza, and "The Glorious Fourth," the patriotic finale. The most impressive importation of European stunts and features in many years was personally engaged last winter on the Continent by John Ringling North, president, Wilson said. Heading it are: the Geraldos, the Margas, the Del Morales, Los Onas, aerial sensations; Alma Pisis, Italy's Venus of the air.

The show travels, as always, on four silver-enameled railroad trains, streamlined in Ringling red, with 1450 people, hundreds of menagerie animals, nine herds of elephants and hundreds of horses.

Marriage License Business Still Booming

While no one expected September to break, or even threaten, any marriage license records, five couples applied for licenses Thursday at Marion county clerk's office.

The previous day had brought August to a total of 124 licenses, tying for second place in the all-time high for any month.

Walter Hunt, inventor of the safety pin, sold all rights to his invention for $400 in 1849.
