

Don't Look Now...

but... well anyway, the man who makes up puzzles for the newspapers and magazines can always get a job planning traffic "cloverleafs" those fancy things they put on street corners now, where you turn left to go right, down to go up, and nobody ever is allowed to drive straight along and mind his own business through.

Race for two... First the telephone company puts out a directory, then the post-office changes a lot of addresses, then the telephone book comes out again, then more new addresses. Fun, isn't it?

Winter sport... Saturday we got out last winter's hat and put it on, preparatory to going to a party. We looked in the mirror, approved ourselves and started out. A hard object started flopping against our cheek. It turned out to be a large safety pin caught in the veiling. Had we a more adventurous spirit like Hedda Hopper, we'd have left it dangling and become a celebrity, probably adding a bottle of cod liver oil and a package of pabulum to the arrangement.

Dark days... It used to be that when we saw two people wearing dark glasses walking along arm in arm, we knew they were blind. Now-a-days it will be only a couple of inhabitants gone Hollywood.

Nothing lost... We were worried about missing the comics on our vacation but found that Dick Tracy spent our whole two weeks treading water in a submerged room. ... Maxine Buren

DAR District Meeting on Saturday

Chemeketa chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will be host for the annual fall meeting of district 2 to be held in Salem on Saturday, September 17, at the Senator hotel. Mrs. C. E. Wilson, Newberg, chairman of district 2, will preside at the business session, which will convene at 10 a. m. in the Copper room.
