3 States Form Truck License Agreement

Oregon, Washington and Idaho have agreed tentatively to recognize each other's system of licensing commercial trucks, William E. Healy, assistant secretary of state, said Wednesday.

Healy said the agreement was reached in Spokane last week end at a conference of state officials. He said the new agreement provides that each state should receive its proportionate share of license revenue from interstate travel in the three states.

Last year, Idaho cancelled its reciprocity agreement with Oregon on grounds that Oregon's truck taxing law penalized Idaho truckers. The recent legislature changed the law so that Idaho now is satisfied.

Under the new agreement, truckers will be able to operate in any of the three states with plates bought in only one of the states, provided that state is the trucker's headquarters.

Healy said California, Montana, Utah, Wyoming and Arizona are considering joining the agreement.

AFL Political Education Meet Set Saturday

In connection with recently established political education programs in Salem labor unions a group of local labor officials will attend a Political League for Education meeting in Forest Grove Saturday.

The session is to draw union representatives from all of Oregon's first congressional district. Going from Salem are Herbert E. Barker, executive secretary of the Salem trades and labor council, and F. J. A. Boehring, chairman of the local council's political education program.

"Our aim," said Barker in speaking of the local program, "is to set up political education committees in each Salem local. The committees will furnish members with voting records of candidates for political offices and promote discussions concerning labor's views of vital state and national issues."

The program being carried out on a local level is affiliated with the political education program of the Oregon state federation of labor, Barker said.

559 Students Enroll to Set Keizer Record

KEIZER - A record enrollment of 559 students were on hand when Keizer grade school opened this week. It was necessary to use four classrooms to accommodate 97 first graders.

New additions to the school's teaching staff are Mrs. Florence Breedlove and Johanna Kortzeboer, first grade; Mrs. Kathleen Hale, second; Mrs. Alverda Brown, fifth; Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, fourth; Mrs. Willow Evans, sixth; Linda Girou, seventh, and Robert Wood, shop and physical education.

School officials predict the enrollment will increase materially after the harvest is completed.

National Scout Official Dies at Local Hospital

William G. Wessel of Forest Hills, N.Y. national Boy Scout official who came here to attend a regional scout leaders' conference in Salem last week, died at a local hospital Wednesday.

The 56-year-old national director of cub scouting services died of a heart ailment at about 2 a.m. He was taken to the hospital Sunday when he became ill.

Wessel was one of six national officers who had come to Salem to take part in the region 11 scout executives conference. The session was held last week on the Willamette university campus.

The conference ended Saturday but Wessel had remained in Salem an additional day to assist local Cascade area scout council officials in plans for their cub scout program; according to Gordon Gilmore, Cascade area council executive.

Wessel is survived by a son and daughter and sister, all of New York. Announcement of services will be made later by the Howell-Edward chapel.

Court Denies Damages in Accident Case

Request for $10,312 damages growing out of a 1946 Oregon state fair horshow accident was denied Wednesday by a Marion county circuit court jury.

The suit had been brought by Elmer H. K. Dorr against Glen Stevens, both of Salem. Dorr alleged that while riding in the state fair stadium a palomino horse owned by Stevens kicked him on the knee and shattered the kneecap. The jury found in favor of the defendant.

Trial of Richard Carter, 1275 S. 12th st., charged with possessing and receiving stolen property began Wednesday and will resume today at 9:30 a.m.

Carter is presently serving a 90-day jail sentence in Marion county jail on a charge of larceny meted out July 15. Circuit Judge George Duncan took under advisement late Wednesday a motion of Bruce Williams, attorney for Carter, for dismissal on the ground of insufficient proof of evidence.

Carter is charged with receiving stolen auto parts at a used car lot operated by him.

Lethin said he hopes to get the course underway in the first week of October. Information on the sessions and qualification requirements are available at the Salem scout headquarters office.

Scoutmasters Training Meet Due in Salem

Plans are underway here for a scoutmasters training conference in the Cherry city (Salem) Boy Scout district early in October.

The course would be for those adults already engaged in scouting and others interested in becoming scoutmasters, according to Clarke Lethin, Cascade area council camping and activities chairman, in charge of the course.

Running for seven weeks with weekly sessions the course would cover the approved methods of troop operation, said Lethin, who has just returned from a one-week training session at the Boy Scout camp on Melita Island, Mont.

Lethin said he hopes to get the course underway in the first week of October. Information on the sessions and qualification requirements are available at the Salem scout headquarters office.

Ex-GI Students To Make Use Of State Funds

Indications point to a considerable increase in numbers of veterans who will use state educational benefits to help pay their way through college this year.

Edward T. Taggart, educational officer for the Oregon department of veterans' affairs, announced Wednesday.

A survey of state and independent colleges by Taggart disclosed that school officials expect more veterans to apply for benefits under the state program starting this year because their GI benefits are running out.

While state veterans' benefits are smaller than those paid under the federal program, more than 3,000 Oregon ex-servicemen have drawn state aid since 1945. Last school year's peak was in March when 529 students were on the active list for state benefits.

Eligible Oregon veterans enrolled in full time undergraduate college studies this year can expect a $15 increase in state benefits as the result of 1949 legislative action raising to $50 a month the amount payable to such students. They must be enrolled for at least 12 credit hours in accredited schools of higher learning. The regular $35 monthly payments remain in force for graduate students and those enrolled in high school, extension courses, and vocational and technical schools.

To qualify under the state program, the veteran must have resided in Oregon for one year prior to active duty, must have served at least six months after Sept. 15, 1940, and before Dec. 31, 1946, and must not be drawing GI benefits at the same time.
