The answers to everyday insurance problems *
By Sid Boise

QUESTION: We belong to a social group of about twenty couples and each couple takes a turn as hosts for a house party at which the others are guests. Martha, a local maid of honor, work, always helps with the serving and cleaning up at the home where the party is given. Last week, Martha slipped, going down stairs to the basement party room and although she wasn't hurt, some of our group thought we should take out some form of insurance covering our liability in such an accident. Is Employer's Liability the proper kind?

ANSWER: Employer's Liability insurance covers your legal liability in accidents to servants but it would be much simpler for each couple to own Comprehensive Personal Liability coverage. That sort of policy covers your liability for accidents to part time servants and gives a lot of additional protection for a very small premium. No family should be without it.

* If you'll address your own insurance questions to this office, we'll try to give you the correct answers and there will be no charge or obligation of any kind.
