Woodburn
To Enforce
Juvenile Law

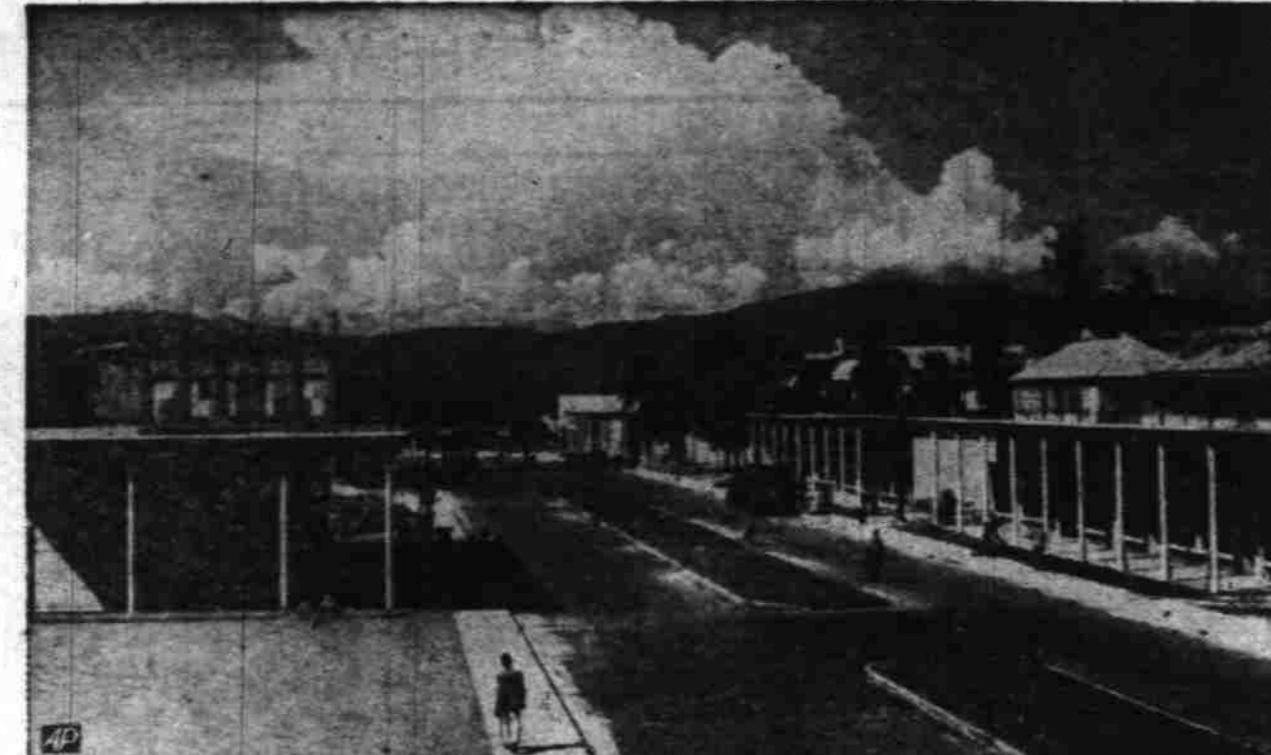

Statesman News Service
WOODBURN—A move to crack down on reckless juvenile drivers and youngsters who remain on the streets "after hours" has begun in Woodburn.
 An ordinance prohibiting reckless driving on city streets and giving police power to enforce it against juveniles was passed at the city council last week. A fine from $15 to $250 is provided for offenders.
 Police also were instructed by the council to enforce the curfew ordinance, which provides that persons under 17 are not to be on the streets or in public places at night unless accompanied by an adult or unless on an errand.
 Parents or guardians will be held responsible, police said. In other action the council authorized painting of the city water tank and passed on other matters.

Survey to Total
Tax Exempt
Land in State

The state tax commission announced Monday it is preparing to conduct a survey to determine the amount of property exempt from taxes in Oregon. Officials said the survey would require considerable time and result in some additional expense.
 Appraisal engineers will be sent into every county in the state to work with county assessors. The engineers will be assigned from the assessment and taxation division.
 Tax commission officials said they have received many inquiries as to the total exemptions. "It is our hope that the proposed survey will provide a complete picture of the exempt property situation," a member of the tax commission said.

Artist Can't Find
'All-American Boy'
In Movie Capitol

HOLLYWOOD—(INS)—Norman Rockwell, famed Vermont illustrator, said he couldn't find a wholesome-looking, typically American, teen-age model in all Hollywood.
 "All of them emote and grimace as if undergoing a screen test," he moaned.
 "In Arlington, Vt.,—population 462—I can walk over to the school and find any number of girls who can pose naturally and act like typical American girls," Kent added.
 Rockwell, in Hollywood to do magazine covers and Hallmark Christmas card scenes, gave up trying to find a model suitable for his illustration and simply changed the illustration idea. He is "painting fast," he said, so he can return to Vermont.

Rabbits Enjoy City
Life While Hunters

MANSFIELD, O.—(INS)—A small army of rabbits have moved in on Mansfield and declared an "open season" on backyard vegetable plots and lettuce patches.

 Rabbits are easy to shoot... but it's against the law to use firearms inside the city limits.
 Rabbits are easy to trap... but wandering cats and dogs might be caught also.
 Rabbits are susceptible to poison... but so are dogs and cats.
 Meanwhile, the invaders are taking nicely to city life and can be seen almost every night playing on lawns and rummaging in gar. dens.
