

Seen and Heard...

By JERYME ENGLISH

TRAVEL NOTES . . . Interesting accounts of their European trip come from Mrs. Oliver B. Huston and daughters, Harriet and Virginia . . . They left here in July and the past week have been in Holland . . . Prior to that they had been bicycling in England and Scotland . . . they went by train to Glasgow and then bicycled around the beautiful Scotch lakes . . . At Edinburgh, which they think is one of the most beautiful cities in the world, they were shown the University of Edinburgh campus by a professor . . . At Loch Lomond, Jigs bicycled the "low rode" and the other two took the "high rode" . . . then by train back to England and to Cambridge university, where a student guided them through the buildings and campus . . . In London their headquarters were at a home of three English school teachers, whom they had met on the ship going over . . . The travelers were most enthusiastic about the beautiful Shakespearean country and at Stratford-on-Avon saw "Othello" and "Much Ado About Nothing" . . . Standing room only, but a rail to lean on . . . however, they didn't realize they had stood for several hours as the plays were so good and the acting superb . . . The Hustons then bicycled 45 miles to Oxford and there met the vice-dean of Oxford, who is a cousin of Jack Hand of Salem . . . He then showed them around the campus and they even saw the original garden of "Alice in Wonderland" . . . and while there a little girl was playing in the garden, which made it even more realistic . . . They took the train back to London, where they spent a week . . . On arriving in London they had to bicycle from one end to the city to the other . . . They found it hard to ride through the streets as cars don't pay any attention to bicycles . . . and that particular day the Princess Royale's son was being married and the streets were lined with crowds . . . On to Holland . . . on October 9 and in Amsterdam they will be guests of a Dutch couple, whom they met and became friends with on the ship, "Delft" . . . when the ship was in Portland loading cargo the Hustons rented a car and took the couple to Timberline lodge for the day . . . Next on their itinerary will be Belgium, Luxembourg, Italy, bicycling along the Mediterranean . . . and back to Paris to visit Mr. Huston's cousins, the Lloyd Cornwalls, who were here during the war for two months . . . They sail for the states on November 15 from Rotterdam . . . AT RANDOM . . . It is building time now for the Maurice Safrons, who have already started construction on their one story home in Ben Lomand Park . . . lots of view windows looking north and east are in the plans . . . Now settled in their newly built home on Candalaria-Heights are the Maurice Brennens and their two children . . . Their Avarado Terrace home is on the west side overlooking the valley, painted white with red eaves . . . Maurice spent most of the spring and summer months, with the aid of his father, working on the house, doing most of the carpentry and finishing work themselves . . . TEA TIME . . . on Tuesday when the Salem Women's Army-Navy league entertained at the home of the H. G. Maisons . . . The old officers honoring the new ones . . . Jeri Brownell in a black velvet passing the guest book . . . Little Carolyn Zoe Lowery, better known to her friends as Punky and a granddaughter of the Maisons, here visiting and the center of much attention at the tea . . . part of the time in the receiving line with her grandmother . . . and wearing a darling grey corduroy pinafore with tiny red leather daisy belt . . . The dinner . . . a gorgeous arrangement of dahlias in vivid hues in the hallway . . . on the mantel shaggy chrysanthemums shading from pink to lavender . . . A unique tea table . . . a soft yellow floor length chintz cloth on the round table . . . A vegetable figurine in the center . . . cleverly dressed with a ruffled artichoke skirt, cauliflower sleeves and her onion face painted like a doll's . . . three large white candles in back with arrangements of grapes and fruit on either side . . . Bouquets to Mrs. Hugh Adams for the clever idea . . . About the guests . . . Mrs. Donald Fisher stunning in a steel grey suit and hat with mink furs . . . and coming in with Mrs. Richard Hayward, recently moved here from Seattle . . . Mrs. Philip Allison, Mrs. Mark Hillary and Mrs. Claude Johns . . . Mrs. Thomas E. Rilea wearing a robin's egg blue felt with her greige coat . . . Mrs. James Hawthorn's smart mulberry tweed suit with matching velvet beret and lizard accessories . . . Mrs. Woodson Bennett, another charming newcomer who moved here from Portland, wearing a maroon and grey invisible plaid suit with green felt and Kolinsky furs . . . Petite Mrs. Sidney Schlesinger chic in a brown and white check eton jacket suit with tangerine jacket and cumberland and matching hat piped in the tangerine . . . and Mrs. Joseph Felton smart in a black and white check suit with bustle back jacket . . . Headed South . . . leaving Friday on the Shasta Daylight for San Francisco will be Mrs. Robert L. Elstrom and daughter, Patricia . . . Saturday they will go down to Palo Alto to see the Stanford-Oregon State game . . . and on Sunday they have tickets for the closing opera of the season, "Die Walkuere," with Kirsten Flagstad singing the leading role . . . They will be home again on the following Tuesday . . . Mrs. Douglas McKay will hold her weekly at home on Tuesday afternoon at her Jerris avenue residence with all townpeople and visitors in the city for the day invited to call . . . Friday afternoon Mrs. McKay entertained at luncheon for 12 matrons from Cottage Grove and later in the day they toured the state capital building and visited the governor's office . . . Prof. Gilkey to Lecture . . . Continuing its series of free public lectures on outstanding exhibitions, the Portland art museum announces a talk on Max Beckman by Professor Gordon W. Gilkey, head of the art department of Oregon State college, to take place Wednesday, October 19, at 8:15 p. m. in the museum auditorium. Mr. Gilkey is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Gilkey, Manbrin Gardens, Salem. The current Max Beckmann exhibition was selected from last year's large retrospective exhibition at the City art museum of St. Louis and covers the artist's distinguished career of over 40 years . . .
