

New Women's Apparel Shop Due in Salem

A new women's apparel shop, The Vogue of Salem, is due to open in this city early in December at 445 State st.

W. A. Jones from Plainview, Tex., and his son, W. B. Jones, also from Plainview, filed an assumed business name certificate for the new store with the Marion county clerk last week.

W. A. Jones said he and his son have looked for a place to locate in the northwest for several years and chose Salem after visiting the city in June. They returned in July and August to begin preparations.

The Jones family owns two women's shops, a men's store and a department store in Plainview and Lubbock in Texas, where they have been in business 25 years.

Eva Taylor, who will be buyer for the new store here, left this week for eastern and southern markets to purchase initial stocks.

The new store will be located at the present site of Bligh Billiard parlor. Contract for the fixtures has been let to the Beaver-craft company of Salem. The architect is Lyle P. Bartholomew.

Both Jones families expect to settle in Salem, although they will retain their interests in Texas. W. A. Jones will bring his wife and 14-year-old daughter, and W. B. Jones his wife and 3-month-old son.

Insect Study One of 25 Projects Offered in Salem to 4-H Clubber

By James Bishop
Salem 4-H Extension Agent

Entomology, the study of insects, is one of 25 fascinating and practical projects offered boys and girls in Salem through the city 4-H club program.

The project member collects, mounts, properly identifies and records at least one insect specimen in each of 10 different orders of insects. At least four of these specimens must be recognized pests and two beneficial insects.

All insects collected are to be correctly mounted and labeled in display boxes, with information as to where the specimen was collected and the collector's name.

Insect collecting equipment can be made by the club member as part of his project.

Learns Insect Life

The member learns the names of a variety of insects and studies their life history. Control methods are learned for injurious insects.

Beneficial insects are recognized for their usefulness to man.

Each member prepares an insect exhibit for showing at local county and state fairs. A record book containing life histories of insects studied, control methods for injurious insects that were done by the club member, and field trips, is an important part of each exhibit.

Information on how this is done and a record book are furnished to each member and leader of the club.

Rather Technical

It is advisable that members planning to take an entomology project be at least 12 years of age, because the work is rather technical.

Two well qualified entomologists with the state department of agriculture, J. E. Davis and F. P. Larson, Salem, have volunteered to lead a group of five to eight young people each in this project.

These members are to be particularly interested in the study of insects and agree to complete the project work. It is necessary that these clubs be started at once. Those interested are to contact the city 4-H extension agent.

Other projects that are available to city youth, between the ages of 9 and 21, include such projects in the home economics field as sewing, cooking, homemaking, food preservation, knitting and child care. Examples of general projects are woodworking, forestry, rose and flower, home beautification, bird study, vegetable gardening, poultry, rabbits, camp cooking, bachelor sewing, art and health.

Information and assistance in organizing such 4-H clubs with individuals, churches, PTAs, mother's clubs, service clubs, civic organizations, home extension units and farm organizations, may be obtained from the city 4-H club extension office at 475 N. Church st.

Newbury Makes Racing Fund Apportionment

Final apportionment of state racing funds to the counties for 1949, aggregating $5,522 to each county, was announced Saturday by Secretary of State Earl T. Newbury.

During the year each county received, for the benefit of county fairs, a total of $7,500 out of state racing funds, which exceeded the 1948 apportionment by $177.

Total receipts for distribution to county fairs and the state general fund during the year totaled $619,905.78, apportioned as follows:

County fair $270,000, Eastern Oregon Livestock show $7,500, Northwestern Turkey show $2,400, Pendleton roundup $7,500, Pacific International Livestock Exposition $35,000, state fair $35,000, mid-Columbia livestock show $5,000, Klamath basin round-up association $5,000, spring lamb and dairy show $2,500, Pacific Coast turkey exhibit $2,400 and state corn show $2,500.

Another apportionment involved the regular distribution of liquor privilege tax money, aggregating $77,424.17, to the cities and counties for the quarter ended September 30. This money represents a special privilege tax on liquors collected for the benefit of cities and counties, Newbury said.

The city of Portland received $21,698.84, Salem $2,196.07, Eugene $1,480.58 and Klamath Falls $1,172.14.
