

Broken Heart Kills 'Oscar,' Pet Baby Seal

VANCOUVER, B. C. (CP)—Oscar is dead—of a broken heart. The baby seal, nursed from death's door to health by 30 days of care and affection from its finder's family, died in Stanley park.

It has broken eight-year-old Jimmy MacNeil's heart, too. Jimmy found Oscar half dead in Burrard inlet last month and nursed him. And it was Jimmy who generously consented to allow Oscar to go to the park board so that other Jimmies could enjoy Oscar's company.

That was 10 days ago. Today Jimmy's father, Norman MacNeil, is angry.

"They should have told me Oscar was sick," said Mr. MacNeil. "They've lost every seal they ever had. Oscar was healthy and fine when we turned him over."

Park Superintendent P. B. Stroyan hasn't received a full report of Oscar's death.

Talks Monday

MONMOUTH, Oct. 20 — Dr. Stephen Corey, famed American expert on elementary school curriculum, will speak at Oregon College of Education here Saturday, October 22. Dr. Corey is now at Columbia university. Members of Phi Kappa Delta, Pi Lambda Theta and Delta Kappa Gamma throughout Oregon are invited to a 6:30 dinner sponsored by the OCE Faculty club.

Island Mice Baffle Science

VANCOUVER, B. C. (INS)—A barren rock north of Vancouver Island has yielded naturalists two new species of mice and an unsolved riddle.

On tiny, uninhabited Triangle Island, in the stormy seas sweeping in from the North Pacific, Vancouver explorers captured the mice, previously unknown to zoologists.

The small animals are white-footed, about the size of the ordinary field mouse. They nest in the crevices of the granite-bound island and feed on its scant vegetation.

Naturalist Frank Beebe of Vancouver's Stanley Park Zoo said the mice are being classified and named. Only one fact is missing.

How did the mice get to the Triangle island?

The rock is miles from the nearest land. Only sea birds are found there and then just during the nesting season. Chances of the mice having been carried there by men are too remote to be considered.

"Another of nature's unsolved riddles," said Naturalist Beebe.

Home Furniture Store Sets Today For Open House

An open house will be held today from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. by the Salem Home Furniture company in celebration of the recent remodeling project which brought a new look both to the interior and exterior of the 137 S. Commercial st. store.

Steel-framed windows of extra large size and a planting arrangement of boxwood trees, decorate the new store front, and inside delicate yellow and various shades of green make up the motif. New display shelves also have been installed.

R. H. Ermel, who established the store five years ago, has announced that new Salem maps would be distributed and that the open house also would call for red carnations for women visitors.
